Wood backed Lindsay as choice over Agnew

By DAVID OTTAWAY

Record Convention Bureau
MIAMI BEACH — The lesson John D. Wood is taking home from the Republican National Convention is that liberals like Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Mayor John Lindsay must learn to become good party men if they are ever to gain the nomination.

Wood, one of the 15th Districts' two delegates at the convention, said there was "an awful lot of grumbling" in the delegation when it was learned that Maryland Gov. Spiro Agnew had been chosen for the vice presidential spot.

Wood joined in a movement among some of Pennsylvania's delegates to get the name of Mayor Lindsay on the ballot in opposition to Agnew.

But Lindsay refused and Wood thinks, wisely so.

"The problem for the liberals," he said, "is that they must prove to the conservative that they too are good party men."

Lindsay, he believed, might have stamped the convention, but, in doing so, compromised his political future. Instead the New York mayor ended by seconding the nomination of Gov. Agnew.

Pleds for unity

"He pleaded for party unity," Wood said. He felt the liberals had to avoid the mistake of Gov. Rockefeller, who, "boomed" at the 1964 convention, turned his back on the party's presidential candidate Barry Goldwater and later only reluctantly supported him.

Because of this, Rockefeller lost support among party regulars which helped defeat him at this convention.

"I would think the liberals would learn their damn lesson which is to work hard for the party," said Wood.

He predicted that Lindsay would travel "long and far" in the South and Mid-west in support of the Nixon-Agnew ticket.

"All he has to do is prove he's a good party man," said Wood.

Judging from Wood's comments, the Republican liberals have apparently now given up any hope of winning in November.

Their strategy in this election, it appeared, will be to show that they are good party men and then wait for 1972 to make their move.

The liberal who worked the hardest in this election, Wood predicted, would be the most likely Republican candidate of the next convention.

Wood's theory as to why Nixon picked Agnew is that the Republican presidential candidate wanted a person who was "a completely neutral type" and who was not objectionable to any faction.

He also wanted a person, according to Wood, who was not a "bright light" that would detract from Nixon's personality.

"This is Nixon's show," he said.

Wood himself is unsure what he will do next. He said he was "meditating" on the problem right now. He said that it would be "extremely difficult" for him to vote for a Nixon-Agnew ticket but that he was still studying his decision before making up his mind.

Wood was one of two delegates representing Monroe County.

National Guard patrolling Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Riot-equipped National Guard troops Friday patrolled streets where three Negroes were shot to death and 18 persons were wounded during two days of battling, rock and bottle-throwing and burning.

Officials clamped an 8 p.m. curfew on nearly half the city and police hoped that forecast heavy rains would prevent further flareups.

Bars and liquor stores were ordered shut in a vast zone that encompassed some white residential and business sections bordering trouble areas.

Except for a few scattered shots, all was quiet Friday.

However, county authorities said forces of National Guardsmen, police, highway troopers, conservation officers and beverage agents were being beefed up.

Police Lt. Jack Minix said J.

J. Austin, 28, and Moses Cannon, 27, were shot to death by police Thursday afternoon during the height of the outbreak in Liberty City, just 10 miles from the Republican National Convention.

Minix said both men were shooting at officers when they were felled by a police volley.

U.S. approves big purchase of steel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford authorized Friday the purchase of 1.5 million tons of steel now to meet the Pentagon's major hardware requirements for the current fiscal year.

The action apparently is designed to take advantage of steel prices at current price levels. "Now is a good time to buy steel," said one official.

The big purchase—which will actually be carried out through major defense contractors—represents somewhat less than half of the Pentagon's annual procurement of 3.75 million tons of steel.

Several steel companies have publicly stated over the past few days they are not raising prices on certain key categories of steel used by the Defense Department or its contractors.

Little Rock hit by violence

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Police and National Guardsmen moved into a Negro area of central Little Rock Friday night after an outbreak of shooting and rock and brick throwing.

John Ward, an aide of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, said police reported shortly afterward that they believed they had the situation under control.

Political wars new to Agnew

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)

— The Richard Nixons and the Spiro Agnews could hardly be called close friends. In fact, until the phenomenon of compromise politics threw the two men onto the same presidential ticket, they barely knew each other.

The Nixons and the Agnews fly to San Diego today, after a stopover at President Johnson's Texas ranch, to plan campaign strategy and get acquainted. The next week could be quite an eye-opener for the Agnews.

They are relatively inexperienced in national politics and will be living and working with one of the real Republican veteran families.

The Nixons now are halfway through their eighth major political campaign.

The Agnews have been through two.

The Nixons have planned ahead for the battle.

The Agnews say they were so unprepared for the second spot on the ticket that they had to send an SOS to Annapolis, Md., for some clean clothes to take along on the trip west.

The only political battles Maryland Gov. Agnew has waged was one for Baltimore County executive and then for governor.

Nixon, on the other hand, has been through eight campaigns, two successful ones for the House of Representatives in 1946 and 1948, one successful one for the Senate in 1950, two successful ones for the vice presidency in 1952 and 1956, an unsuccessful presidential bid in 1960, an unsuccessful race for the California statehouse in 1962 and now a second presidential bid.

Mrs. Agnew, holding only the second news conference of her life this week, acknowledged her own inexperience and shyness.

All 48 on craft perish

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — A British turbo-prop airliner, spewing smoke and debris, skidded into a Bavarian village and slammed into a field in bad weather Friday, killing all aboard.

British Eagle Airways headquarters in London said its four-engine Viscount, en route from London to Innsbruck, Austria, was carrying 44 passengers and a crew of four.

Bavarian police had set the death toll at 57, but later a police official said an accurate count was impossible at the crash scene, 25 miles north of this Bavarian capital, because of the state of the bodies.

Witnesses said the plane, trailing smoke, burst into flames as it crashed. Burning fuel sprayed onto the four-lane Munich-Nuernberg autobahn, blocking the superhighway just before the surge of heavy week-end traffic.

Bavarian police said the road was lightly traveled at the time but one motorist was reported injured in a car struck by debris.

In the last radio communication from the plane, the pilot reported no difficulty. Munich-Rien Airport said. The plane crashed eight minutes later, near the villages of Hoeg and Langenbruck.

GOP breaking camp with final hurrah

By ROBERT S. VAN FLEET

Record Convention Bureau
MIAMI BEACH — The Republicans giving the last hurrah to their National Convention, are decamping from shimmering Miami Beach with a ticket and a platform they think is molded for a less-than-modest but acceptable fit on almost any voter and any issue.

Unlike the rending time of 1964, the byword of both candidate selection and platform construction was accommodation.

The platform succeeded in accommodating the Nixons, the Rockefeller, the Reagans, the Dirksen, the Lindsays, the Fords, and the Javitses—conservatives, liberals, and moderates.

The ticket of Nixon-Agnew was not quite so all-embracing. It accommodated the south, drew assurances from the conservatives, and left moderates enough satisfied so they won't cry out.

But with the liberals it was something else. They mounted a brief campaign for recognition with the call for New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay and then settled for a protest in a vehicle driven by Michigan Gov. George Romney.

Nixon mold

The convention, from its outset, was destined to carry the Nixon mold because, as delegates revealed themselves and reached for common ground, the former vice president most nearly represented the final distillation of their sometimes disparate Republicanism.

This is not a day when the now-hated (and probably nonexistent) "Eastern Establishment" could win even the door prize at a Republican National Convention.

Richard Milhous Nixon is the current Mr. Republican. He is safe, familiar, sound, comfortable, Rockefeller, while probably electable arouses suspicion and uncertainty with the traditional causes he champions. Reagan, about whose electability there is worry, is as far from the middle of the right as Rockefeller is on the left.

These are some of the reactions to the 1968 results achieved by Republicans at their quadrennial reunion.

Perhaps the biggest excitement — in its unexpectedness — came with Nixon's selection of Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew to run with him.

Nominees to visit with LBJ

MIAMI BEACH (AP) —

Richard M. Nixon set top priority Friday on rallying Republican troops to his banner in the big industrial states.

He also accepted President Johnson's offer of full information on the Vietnam peace talks, renewing his pledge not to undercut them.

The GOP presidential nominee told reporters he and running mate Spiro T. Agnew plan to stop at the LBJ ranch in Texas today — en route to 10 days of rest-and-strategy sessions in California—to get a briefing from Cyrus R. Vance, deputy U.S. negotiator in Paris. But Nixon said he has called off plans to visit Russia later this month—or at any time before the election—because "we have too many demands that are urgent in the United States to allow foreign travel."

He suggested it might be presumptuous to say whether he would make such a trip if the Nov. 5 election makes him president-elect.

While Nixon met with reporters—and then headed for an afternoon of relaxation at nearby Key Biscayne—GOP officials went through the traditional post-convention housekeeping chores, re-electing Ray Bliss as chairman of the party's National Committee and picking former budget director Maurice Stans as the new party finance chairman.

Nixon, looking tired still but relaxed, said he had four hours of sleep Thursday night, about four times as much as the night before. "That's the way it's gonna be from now on," he advised reporters.

"Very shortly," he said, "we will be starting bridge-building" in the states "where there has been great support for other candidates." Nixon had support from only Illinois and Texas of the seven largest states in winning the nomination and mentioned California, Pennsylvania and New York as specific areas of attention.

And Michigan Gov. George Romney said Nixon and Agnew "must make the party leaders from the states that must win the election for them at least as important as Mr. Nixon made the leaders of the South and Southwest in winning the nomination."

Nixon said that when Republicans already have an excellent organization as in Pennsylvania, "we want to work with it and through it, not around it." He said he would spend two or three days visiting these states, conferring with party officials but not making speeches.

"There is some real disagreement in the Republican party," Nixon conceded as grumbling over the choice of Agnew continued behind the scenes, "but not nearly as much as there is in the Democratic party."

Reporting that the President phoned him Thursday night, the nominee quoted Johnson as having told him: "Dick, you have my congratulations and my sympathy."

Allies seal off village

SAIGON (AP) — Allied forces sealed off a coastal village five miles northeast of Hue and killed 42 members of an enemy force menacing the ancient capital while suffering no casualties, U.S. headquarters reported Saturday.

Farther north, between the frontier center of Gio Linh and the South China Sea, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 25 enemy Friday at the scene of a lopsided government victory.

Violence in Uruguay

Students clash with police

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Students fought with police Friday after police raided the University of Uruguay looking for evidence in the kidnaping of a close adviser to President Jorge Pacheco Areco.

Police withdrew from the university after about two hours but were caught up in a brawl with 300 protesting university students. Several students were injured and an undetermined number were arrested.

Riot squads kept about 1,000 other students at bay in the university compound by laying down a thick fog of tear gas. Later in the day, high school students joined in the demonstrations in two suburbs.

About 500 of the high school students blocked the bridge over the Pentasno River leading to Montevideo's industrial district and stoned a police car sent to the scene.

The student reaction had been expected because Latin American universities are, by tradition, off limits to police and troops.

Col. Alberto Aguirre Gestido, chief of capital police, made clear, however, that the raid was intended to get information on the kidnaping Wednesday of Dr. Ulyses Pereira Reverbel, Pacheco's adviser. The kidnaping is blamed on pro-Red Chinese Communists.

In a communique, Aguirre said the police had learned "through reliable sources that activities related to acts of violence and the publishing of subversive leaflets were being carried out" on the university grounds.

Police asserted they found bot-les of inflammable liquid, rocks and leaflets in the buildings.

The kidnaping and student violence is directly connected with Pacheco's battle to quiet labor unrest and inflation in this formerly placid country.

Labor groups staged strikes for higher wages in the past two months and their demonstrations were broken up by police.

Czechs give Tito warm welcome

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechs gave a tumultuous welcome Friday to President Tito of Yugoslavia, who backed Prague's liberal leaders in their confrontation with the Russians. Tens of thousands of Prague citizens crowded the capital's Ruzny Airport and lined the streets for hours before the arrival of Tito, the 76-year-old apostle of independent communism who broke with Stalin 20 years ago.

President Ludvik Svoboda and Alexander Dubcek, who took over as the Czechoslovak party chief last January from the orthodox Antonin Novotny, headed the welcoming delegation.

They featured his recent declaration that he was ready to go "any time of the day or night and to any place" to support Dubcek.

Ike reportedly 'gaining strength'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's doctors reported Friday he is gaining strength and is in "excellent spirits" following his newest major heart attack last Monday.

He still is classified as critically ill, like any other victim of a recent cardiac attack.

The doctors said "age, of course, is a factor" in replying to a newsman's submitted question: "Does the general's condition justify particular concern because of his age?"

Eisenhower is 77. Meanwhile, it was learned elsewhere that, on a statistical basis, the five-star general's sixth heart attack since 1953 meant that:

He so far has survived twice as many attacks as the number that apparently most often add up to certain and quick death. And his latest three have all occurred within 3½ months.

Moreover, his weathering of at least five separate attacks—and his reported continuing progress so far in rallying from the sixth—put him in the "multiple attack" category. The latter is a category wherein reliable statistics are not available as to the number of similar survivors. A spokesman for the U.S. Public Health Service's National Heart Institute, in answer to a query, said that, based on statistical information "it appears that the third attack is most often fatal."

Mail returns to normal in Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian mail service returned to normal Friday in all but Montreal after a three-week postal workers' strike.

A walkout of 350 private mail truck drivers halted all deliveries to the Montreal post office.

The strikers are employed by Rod Services Co. Ltd., which holds a contract to pick up mail at letter boxes and deliver it to post offices, then take mail from the post offices to rail and air depots.

Drivers are demanding pay for time they lost during the postal strike.

The Canadian Union of Postal Workers by a vote of 12,173 to 8,163 decided Thursday to accept the government's latest wage offer and end the strike.

Postal workers will get a 21-cent an hour wage increase retroactive to Aug. 1, 1967, and in October another 18 cents an hour through September of 1968. The union sought 75 cents an hour for 14 months starting last August. Postal pay had averaged $2.75 an hour.

The embargo on mail to Canada from the United States has been lifted. Post offices can now accept letters or post cards, for delivery in Canada.

The postoffice will be informed when other embargos on prints, newspapers, magazines and samples will be lifted.

Taxpayers fight chief selection

MT. BETHEL — The Upper Mt. Bethel Township Taxpayers' Association will petition Gov. Raymond P. Shafer in an attempt to overturn a decision made by the Township Supervisors in the hiring of a new police chief.

The association, which charged that the supervisors are not representing the interests of the electorate, decided at a meeting Thursday night to petition the governor.

Township supervisors at their last meeting hired Arthur Stout, 53, of East Bangor, as the new township police chief. Stout, who resides in East Bangor, was the East Bangor Chief.

The association wants Edward Yakenchek reappointed as chief.

Frank Fentzlaff, association president, had charged that supervisors altered some of the qualifications for the post in order to hire Stout. They believed one of these pertained to residency. The supervisors, on hiring Stout, stated he could maintain his home in East Bangor.

Dr. Stephen Marion, a summer resident of North Bangor, suggested the petition be sent to Gov. Shafer. He also said that the petition should contain about 600 names. Marion also said that constant pressure must be maintained on politicians in order to get action.

Dr. Marion is a congressional candidate in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Up Milford Way

Canoe Regatta

MILFORD — Since entries may be made up until the starting time of the race, there is no telling how many contestants there will be in the Third Annual Canoe Regatta on the Delaware River on Sunday. However, the supply of entry blanks at the office of the Port Jervis Chamber of Commerce was almost exhausted early this week so this year's affair, if we may be excused the use of a time worn phrase, should be "bigger and better than ever."

The course of the race, from Traver's Beach, Barryville, N.Y. to the Municipal Beach at Port Jervis is about 18 miles. Last year, Dale Smith and Marcel Miles from Camp Spears in Pike County, turned in the fastest time in the race when they covered the course in 2 hours, 53 minutes and 17 seconds.

Since the river, at race time, is expected to be as high as it was last year, we may see that record beaten. The addition, this year, of a senior class for men 21 years of age and older, may also contribute to a new time record being established.

The Pike County Chamber of Commerce will again present trophies to the members of the team turning in the fastest time of any of the entries from Pike County.

When Milford Attorney, Sidney L. Krawitz was inducted into the American College of Trial Lawyers at the Bellevue Stratford in Philadelphia last Saturday evening he was the only one of the fifteen attorneys from Pennsylvania who were so honored.

The other barristers were from Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Erie and Wilkes-Barre. In the alphabetical listing the name of the man from little Milford was right in the middle of the Pennsylvania list!

The Lyric Arts Opera Company will present their fourth production of the current season, "Madame Butterfly" at the Port Jervis High School Auditorium this evening.

Phil Judd's Tri-States String Band will hold their second outdoor concert of the season at the Milford ballfield on Sunday evening. These programs, which are very popular, remind some of the older folks around the village of the days of yesteryear when concerts on the grounds at the Bluff House were a feature of every Sunday evening during the summer.

August Metz Jr. of Milford has been named vice chairman representing Pike County in the Regional Chamber of Commerce by the new chairman, Malcolm Booth. "Gus" has been the Pike County representative to the Regional Chamber for several years. The Chamber embraces Orange, Ulster, Sullivan and Rockland counties in New York, Sussex and Passaic counties in New Jersey and Pike county in Pennsylvania.

Those in attendance at the warm water fisheries workshop of the Northeast Division of the American Fisheries Society, held at the Pinchot Institute on Monday and Tuesday of this week, were high in their praise of the former Gifford Pinchot home as a meeting place.

Allentown sues Roseto contractor

ROSETO — A Roseto contracting firm and an insurance company have been sued for $6,121 by the City of Allentown.

The suit was filed against Ernest A. Cascioff Co., Inc. of Roseto and the United Bonding Insurance Co., Philadelphia.

According to papers filed in the Lehigh County Courthouse, the $6,121 is allegedly owed to a firm which supplied materials for an Allentown sewer project.

The suit states that in 1966 Cascioff was contracted by Allentown to construct a house-drain sewer in northwest Allentown. Monarch Septic Tank Co., Inc. of Allentown was to supply the materials.

Former enemies aid to Nixon

Richard M. Nixon, former vice president of the United States, surprised absolutely nobody early Thursday morning when he was nominated by the Republican party to seek the presidency of the United States.

It will be a second shot at the top prize for Nixon, which is a remarkable factor in itself. The former vice president was a very close loser to the late President John F. Kennedy in 1960.

Getting a second chance to run for the top office in the United States is a tremendous honor, regardless of whether or not an individual won or lost during his initial attempt.

Nixon has worked tirelessly to receive another shot at the top office. He has surrounded himself with a hard-working force that has doggedly rounded up political power from coast to coast and border to border and a first round nomination.

A chest-fallen man of 1960, following his defeat by Kennedy, suddenly finds himself as the leader of his party once again, after feeling at one time that he had fallen into the depths of politics.

However, the Nixon nomination was also a credit to the entire profession of journalism. After his 1960 setback, Nixon lashed out at the press, blaming them directly for his defeat by Kennedy. The former vice president claimed that his "bad press" was the reason for his reversal at the polls.

But, many of the same reporters who stood solid in the face of Nixon's withering blast eight years ago were with him again this time, writing his campaign as they saw it and as it unfolded.

The people who Nixon once branded as his enemies were very much his friends in his drive to the 1968 Republican nomination. They will also play a major role in his drive to capture the presidency in November.

It was a remarkable comeback by Nixon, who is now a better candidate than he was in 1960. Many of his former "enemies" have printed this fact.

Civil defense

The Republican National Convention has pushed thoughts of war furthest from our mind at the present time. Even without the convention most of us don't think enough about possible wars and their aftermaths.

However, we are most fortunate enough to have people who do concern themselves with attacks by enemies and the possibilities of huge losses in life and property damage.

For the most part these people are members of Monroe County Civil Defense and are under the direction of Gilbert L. Smrz.

As you will see upon reading page nine in today's Pocono Record, Monroe County Civil Defense is a wealth of information and suggestions in case of enemy attack on the United States, which has become more than a possibility due to modern weapons and equipment.

The full page display informs residents of Monroe County where to go and what to do in event of a nuclear attack, what is a fallout, the correct protection from fallout radiation, information in time of emergency, warning to take shelter and a list of the public shelters in Monroe County.

The presentation also explains what to do when an individual is in an area where public shelters aren't available. It also explains how to improvise a shelter at home.

The full page of information should be digested by everyone. We may never think of it again until a time of tragedy and then it will be too late.

Digest this information—it may someday save your life. Much of the information can also be found in free booklets at the Civil Defense Office, in the basement of the courthouse.

Coin corner

Silver's added value

BY ROBERT SVENSSON

The number of coins minted in a given year has always been one guide to the value of a coin.

For example, in 1955 the U. S. Mint at Denver produced 3,182,400 Washington Head quarters. Today that coin in uncirculated condition is worth about $4.00. In 1956 the same mint produced 32,324,500 quarters. The 1956-D Quarter is worth about 60 cents, if you'd like to buy one.

The difference in price, of course, is due to the fact that fewer 1955s were produced and presumably fewer are available.

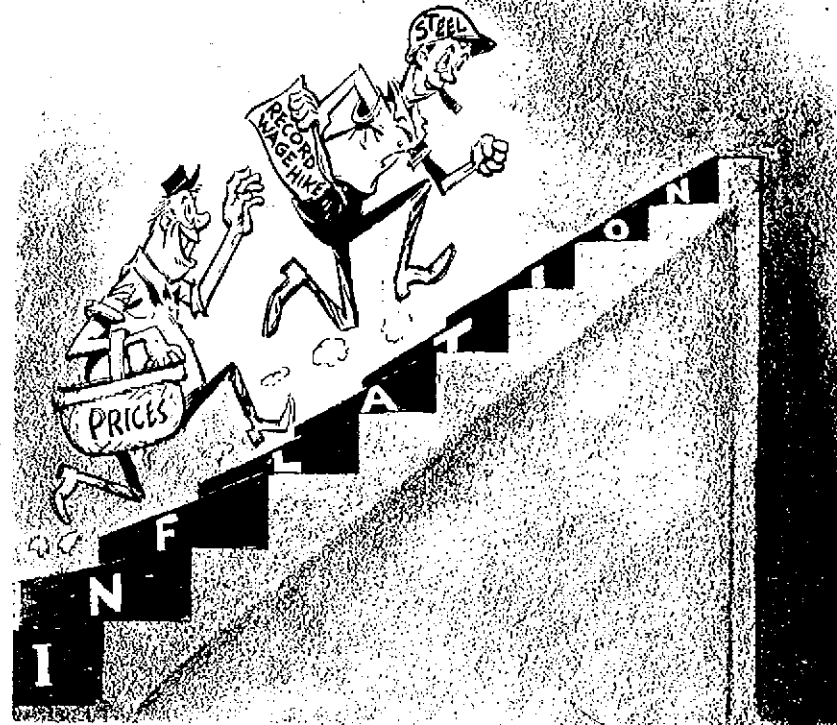

Today, these mint-production figures have far less meaning. Something happened to coin collecting in 1965 when silver was eliminated from quarters and dimes, but half dollars still contained some silver. Silver coins began to disappear.

Now, it is rare to find a silver quarter or dime in circulation. Where did they go?

Collectors have saved a few; speculators have accounted for a few more, but the government has probably taken most of them out of circulation.

Merry chase

Cruise to noplac

The sea is a royal blue dinner plate. The morsel in the center is the 20,000-ton liner Independence. Hour after hour, day after day, the ship sails southeast at 23 knots. It remains in the middle of the plate as though, in spite of all its struggle, it never moved.

And yet, each day the ship is 552 miles further south, the turbines humming, the cabin panels creaking the cradle rhythm, the pulse of the propellers in the deck. This is sea travel as it is on any ship.

There are 750 passengers of all sizes and attitudes. These are kept content by a crew of 540, who clean staterooms, feed them, serve snacks, pump clean salt water into two swimming pools, broil steaks and chill baked Alaska, pour liquor, exhibit first run motion pictures, bring bowls of fruit, run four elevators, and watch the passengers watching the crew from behind sun glasses.

Ready for fun

Men unwind faster than women. The males were tigers the first night out, half bagged and whooping it up on the dance floor. Today, they doze in deck chairs, the paperback books open but unread. The ladies have overcome their timidity, and are eager to shake a thimble, twist a cha-cha, or fall into the old reliable box step.

By day, the women come on deck in bathing suits best described as all meat and no material. The teeny bops gather energy as the hour grows late. There are weird tribal dances where the girl twists herself into the deck without ever knowing whether her dancing partner is on the same ship.

The older couples make the tropical nights romantic. They walk the sun deck in the night breeze, leaning against it as they hold hands. The forepeak of the ship is as dark as the sea. The night wind moans as it curls warmly around the king posts. The stars stand still, some blue-white, some blue, some winking yellow or red.

Hugh O'Brian's cause

MIAMI BEACH — One of the busiest blokes in town this week has been Hugh O'Brian, the actor. He has 26 high school youngsters in tow, showing them how a Republican Presidential nominee was manufactured, wound up, and pointed in the direction of the White House.

Hugh's foundation, which bears his name, is picking up the entire tab for this experiment in political science. The 26 lads were selected with the help of the National Education Association and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. They are from 25 of the states, plus a boy from Mexico.

Another group of 26 will be taken to Chicago for the Democratic convention later in the month. They will be chosen from the remaining 25 states. A Canadian high school student will accompany them.

Why? "It's an experience they'll never forget," handsome Hugh, an ex-Marine, said today at the YMCA, where the group is staying. "I hope that when they go back to school in the fall they'll talk to their classes and their friends about what they saw and heard at the conventions."

Involved in system

"I want to provide them a sense of involvement with the way our democratic system works. I don't know of a more basic way."

The Hugh O'Brian Foundation is 10 years old. It was inspired by Albert Schweitzer, not known for his wide acquaintance among movie stars.

"I read his 'Declaration of Conscience' in 1958 and decided that I must meet that great man," Hugh told us. "I went to Norman Cousins of the Saturday Review, who knew Schweitzer well, and asked him to arrange it if he could. A couple of days later I received a cabled invitation from Lambarene."

"It was an unforgettable experience. Schweitzer was utterly unique. His clip was primitive by our standards. We don't let goats

To me, the appeal is luxurious indolence. I relish the notion of living in a room which is within 200 yards of restaurants, clubs, movies, and that all of it moves to distant countries. The mind slows, the body relaxes to the swing of the ship.

In two and a half days, the Independence was in San Juan. Four of us hired a taxi for $30 and did the tourist thing. We visited the ancient fort, Dorado Beach, Bayamon, flower gardens, and had lunch in the courtyard at El Convento. We were sleeping at 3 a.m. when the ship sailed for the Virgin Islands. At 7 a.m. it was at the dock at Charlotte Amalie.

This too is verdant green in crumpled mountains with sailboats moving like sedate swans in the bay. The shops were Danish in character, the streets were narrow, the prices right. My wife bought her favorite, Harvey's Bristol Cream; I bought a bamboo mug for number two daughter.

Time for everything, and nothing. On the trip back, everybody rested in the sun from doing nothing. The young couples danced the Chippewa rain dance. Some of the men spent the day in the card room, playing gin or studying the market prices in the ship's newspaper. The women were in the nightclubs, laughing at the same sexy jokes they laughed at last week.

Once a day, I religiously sought my typewriter under a bed and kicked it. The smiles of the waiters and stewards became more sincere as tip time approached. I drank coffee until my arteries began to tan. And let us not forget those between meals slabs of roquefort cheese and saltines and bowls of fresh fruit.

I do not know whether William Dennis Fugazy will make a success of his Go-Go ship. Some of the business men aboard said that they planned to hold ready conventions aboard. As for me, I'm ready for another trip now. I must remember to dust off that ukelele.

wander through the wards. But it worked wonders, and everything was held together by that incredible man.

"There was electricity but it was never used except in the operating room. The rest of the time, at night, we used kerosene lamps. The humidity at Lambarene was so terrible that it rotted just about everything. Dr. Schweitzer strung his papers, his literary work, on a fishing line to keep the pages from mildew.

"His old piano was lead-lined to protect what was left of its insides. The night I had dinner with him he first played us a prelude from Bach. He was one of the world's greatest authorities on Bach. Then at the start of the meal his guests a passage from the New Testament, in German, and we were expected to join in picking it to pieces if we could.

"I came away from that visit with a great urge to create my own Lambarene. Everyone should have his own Lambarene—whatever shape of form it takes. In my case, the search was simple. I was playing Wyatt Earp on television at that time and it was going good. I was thrown in constant contact with youngsters and became deeply interested in their problems, their dreams, ambitions.

"It burns me up to read so much about the juvenile delinquents in this country. Ninety-eight or ninety-nine per cent of all the kids in this country are good kids whose names will never get on a police blotter. In my little way I decided I'd do what I could for them with the dough I'd be able to save after taxes, which isn't too much. You see, I'm a bachelor.

"So I got up this foundation with the hope of expanding the horizons of such kids as I could reach. We've gone in for things like oceanography, for instance, on the ground that they'll grow up into a world that will depend heavily on the seas for food and minerals and just about everything else.

"Now politics. They've got to live with politics, too."

Letters to the Editor

Points to alternatives

Editor, The Record

It is clear from the hearings in Trenton on Sunfish Pond and the meeting of the Delaware River Basin Commission in Philadelphia on pumped storage, that there are and have been alternatives to the use of the pond in the utilities' pumped storage projects. Which is what we have maintained for some time and which your editorial of today fails to recognize.

The DRBC last summer, in response to opposition, ordered the utilities to come up with alternatives to using Sunfish Pond. And the committee hearings in Trenton brought out that the utilities can produce peaking power by a number of means as gas turbines, diesel-electric generators, interconnected power, etc., they have been and will continue to expand the use of these power sources.

Their argument that these means cost more does not seem to hold up and is barely relevant measured against the despoliation of this unique natural resource.

The alternative site between Sunfish Pond and the Yards Creek Upper Sump hole is hardly a compromise situated as it will be less than 1,000 feet from Sunfish Pond, rising 200 feet above, and encroaching on the watershed and the unique underground feeders to Sunfish Pond.

Surely this can only mean the inevitable destruction of the pond and as Secretary Udall says, will mean its loss as a wilderness area. In the face of all this, why then, does the executive director of the DRBC assert that enlargement of the Yards Creek site in the Delaware Water Gap Recreation Area would be in the public interest?

Why does the commission push for the Tocks Island Dam, whose effects are likened to the layers of an onion, including the fluctuating waters of the reservoir from the pumped-storage operation and its harm to fishlife, the loss of the river for canoeing and fishing, the damage to the New Jersey shellfish industry, the impact on the ecology of the valley, the enormous waste and sewage disposal problems, dikes and levees upstream and mudflats downstream, the gouging out of the mountain to provide the rock for an enormous mile-wide dam, and, last, when the dam is finished and the reservoir is (hopefully) full, the probability that the Public Health service will rule out swimming in it and further diminish the dubious cost benefit ratio?

Beyond doubt, the commission needs the revenues from the sale of electricity to finance this faulty project, the so-called "cash register" deal, to beef up the failing cost-benefit ratio. Thus the division of the spoils continues and robber-baronry is very much with us.

Human selfishness

Editor, The Record

Basically, the many evils in the world today are due to human selfishness, and the fact that "Satan is the Prince of this World." (John 14:30; Gal 1:4) The reign of sin, selfishness and death has continued to plague mankind since the transgression of our first parents in the Garden of Eden.

Today, however, there is additional trouble, for we are living at the end of the age, and the time of the Lord's second presence (invisible). This is the time foretold by Jesus when he said, "There shall be great tribulation, such as was not since the beginning of the world, nor ever shall be. And except those days should be shortened, there should no flesh be saved." Matt 24:21,22.

Rulers of the earth know that if a general third war should break out among the nations virtually all mankind would be destroyed, even as Jesus foretold. For this reason the major powers of the earth are doing all they can to avoid a world war, even perpetrated by small and great nations (Vietnam, etc.) in order not to produce a world-wide conflict.

I believe that the great increase of crime, the riots, the race wars, and the revolutions which are rampant throughout the earth today are all a part of the "great tribulation" foretold by Jesus. It is a token that the full establishment of Christ's long-promised kingdom is near.

Psalms 30:3: "Weeping may endure for the night but joy cometh in the morning. Of the Lord's kingdom!"

More peeps from veeps

WASHINGTON — Alexander Throttlebottom, in the musical "Of Thee I Sing", had been nominated by the simple process of putting a number of names on slips in a hat and pulling one out. Throttlebottom didn't win; he lost—that is, he had his name drawn.

The first Vice President, John Adams, called his job "the most insignificant office that ever the invention of man contrived." Some vice presidents of the 19th century, nominated for geography rather than talent, were so obscure that their names are remembered today only by cross-word puzzle nuts.

The vice presidential nominee usually "balances" the ticket geographically. Thus Warren of California ran with Dewey of New York in 1948, Bricker of Ohio with Dewey in 1944. Nixon of California with Eisenhower—adopted by the Eastern Establishment—in 1952 and 1956. John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson in 1960.

Often the vice presidential nomination goes as reward for help toward the presidential nomination—Garner with F. D. Roosevelt in 1932. But often it represents an attempt to heal a breach or to reconcile antagonistic elements—Bricker, a Taft leader, with Dewey in 1944; Robinson, Southern Dry, with Smith, Tammany Wet, in 1928.

In recent years the nominee for President has expressed his choice for the V.P. candidacy and the convention has approved. Gen. Eisenhower and a group of his close advisers in 1952, for example, agreed on Sen. Richard M. Nixon (Calif.) for the No. 2 spot on the ticket and the convention quickly confirmed their choice. Similarly, the 1960 conventions quickly accepted the designations by the respective nominees of Lyndon B. Johnson and Henry Cabot Lodge for the vice presidency.

But as recently as 1956 the Democrats fought over the veep nomination after the presidential nominee, Adlai E. Stevenson, declared a hands-off policy in the contest for his running mate. Sen. Estes Kefauver (Tenn.) was nominated on the second ballot after a close race with Sen. John F. Kennedy (Mass.).

The modern resurrection of the vice presidential office from obscurity, if not impotence, had faint beginnings in Woodrow Wilson's second term. While the President was at the Paris Peace Conference, he authorized Vice President Thomas R. Marshall to preside over Cabinet meetings.

Calvin Coolidge said he had been immeasurably helped in the Presidency by having sat in on some sessions of President Harding's Cabinet. However, Hoover's advisers in 1920 dropped the Coolidge co-pilot, Vice President Charles G. Dawes. Louis Clinton Hatch has observed: "President Coolidge is said never to have forgiven him (Dawes) for his absence from the Senate when his casting vote might have saved the nomination of Charles B. Warren as Attorney General from defeat."

President Eisenhower on March 8, 1957, told the press that Vice President Nixon was "one of the comers in the Republican party . . . young, vigorous, healthy and certainly deeply informed." Yet on Aug. 24, 1960, asked what Nixon had contributed to decision-making, Ike said: "If you give me a week, I might think of one."

Martin Van Buren was the last vice president (so far) to become President except through the death of the chief executive. But eight times the vice president has become President.

Today the nomination for vice president of either party would scarcely be considered beneath any worthy man. Throttlebottom, who mournfully wanted to go to his "slick" home town, Topeka, is only a memory.

Senate movie mad

WASHINGTON — A recent development in the U.S. Senate is enough to make some theatre ushers quietly click off their flashlights and seek other fields of employment. I mean I just don't see a movie entitled "How the Senate Works" packing 'em in.

In case you missed the opening episode in this drama, Sens. Vance Hartke (D., Ind.) and George Murphy (R., Calif.) have introduced a resolution calling for the appropriation of $35,000 to make a documentary movie on the Senate. To my mind, this would fill no noticeable information gap.

But apparently they feel not enough people know or appreciate what the Senate does. They think a professional, Hollywood-style short subject would do the job. And that phrase "Hollywood style" should be the tipoff as to what is to come: It is impossible for Hollywood to make ANY kind of a flick for $35 grand.

A million? Maybe. But for $35,000 Hollywood couldn't even film the picture credits, let alone the rest of it. I'm sure Sen. Murphy knows this, even if Sen. Hartke doesn't. Maybe Murphy, a reformed movie star himself, is merely trying to create work for down-and-out actors.

Another thing the movie will do, according to its patron senators, is show how much of the Senate's business goes on in committees, offices and elsewhere "off the Senate floor." Should the director choose to be diligent in this regard, I can see the film company going on location everywhere from downtown Washington bars to the sunny sands of the Riviera.

And, of course, if the movie should REALLY tell how the Senate works, it might not only shatter the faith of the public in representative government, it might even end democracy as we know it.

However, I think we can be fairly certain this movie would not show how deals are made in the Senate cloakrooms or how big campaign contributors get special attention.

Billing could be a problem; if senators fight to get in front of TV cameras every day in Senate corridors, imagine how they would elbow each other aside to be in a movie committed to posterity.

Meanwhile, there is the House of Representatives. Don't think for a minute that the Senate will get away with making a movie without the House making one, too. (Perhaps both movies can go out as a double-feature.) In a way it's too bad that Shirley Temple, Cary Merrill and Steve Allen, all of whom had congressional ambitions, stumbled along the way. What a splendid movie the House could have made.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

Well, that's over with a week to rest our eardrums before the next one starts. Most of the Glen Brook women golfers and their guests looked bright-eyed for the tournament on Thursday but some were sort of bleary-eyed from watching the dominating roll call until the bitter end.

All of them looked a little like pickled beets when they

Ann Winter Odette

September date set for wedding

TIMONIUM, Md. — Mr. and Mrs. Rahban Edward Odette of Timonium, Md., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ann Winter Odette, to Alexander George Whitlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Whitlow of Mount Pocono.

The bride-elect, a graduate of Dulaney High School and of Dickinson College, Carlisle, is employed in Baltimore as an interior decorator.

Her fiancé attended Dickinson College and is now serving in Military Intelligence, United States Army.

A late September wedding is planned.

came in after 18 holes under a sun that grew hotter with every hole. And all of them were talking at once to make up for the enforced silence over the past week.

Meanwhile, however, as it is, there is a fall stirring in the organizations; the East Stroudsburg Football Mothers are getting a head-start on the season, and the first fall fashion show has been scheduled by the Eastern Star.

If that makes you a little panicky about summer slipping away before we're ready, I can sympathize. The shiny new shoes for children featured in shop windows are visual evidence that not only feet but people are going to be squeezed into orderly routine.

So I'm taking a second week of vacation quick — one to be devoted primarily to family affairs. Like leaving a note for the milkman, it seems as if there should be things to remind you about while I'm gone.

The Garden Club's card party at Crossdale Manor on Thursday, for instance, and the Craftsman's Fair, and all the church bazaars. But you'll manage. I'm sure.

"Gutsy" is the favorite new fashion word for men, illustrated here in this bold "Windsorpane" tweed from Scotland, typical of the fall and winter suitings by Bill Blass for PBM. He likes them worn with dark shirts, wide and bold neckties and a new ghillie shoe.

Couture dress designer turns 'gutsy' for the male

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

STROUDSBURG — "These clothes are for the active, modern man... a man who's not afraid of himself, his reflection in the mirror or the unsolicited opinions of his friends... and relatives," says Bill Blass.

The "unsolicited opinions of friends" are practically guaranteed for the man who chooses daytime suit in either single and double breasted tweeds in big checks, gutsy plaids and bold patterns.

"I feel that success needs the successful look... carefree, cheerful, daring. I opt for shirts in dark shades, bold and wide ties and clobber shoes with these clothes."

Blass, top designer in the "haute couture" world of women's fashions has adapted the idea of "pick and put-together" for the men's field so that they can achieve individuality, their own image.

"My clothes are gentlemanly, functional, ready to travel and for any emergency. They are not suitable for seminars, the moon, hippies," he insists.

"I'm against fads, fancy dress and costume for men. The turtle neck has become abused. Jewelry, unless real, related, refined, has no place in a man's life — except on his wife."

Jewelry would be gliding the lily on his evening suits. Single breasted, or Guru, the evening jacket is the shade of burnt sugar and is in fitted velvet. He suggests wearing it at home with suede, tartan side-stripe or matching pants, and adds "It's great with the ponce silk Turf shirt instead of a turtleneck."

His weekend suit is designed on the paratrooper principle for ease. Additional accessories include scarves, six feet long, in school boy stripes with matching sweaters, such as shown in the background of the photo above.

His coats hail back to the '20s' with his favorite a maxi racoon which costs only $1,200, which, he adds, "can double as a bedspread. For city evenings and foreign travel, he produces the Guardsmen's coat, also maxi, in melton.

He also features wide belts to minimize expanding waistlines in leather, suede or a new tapestried gros-point with huge brass buckles.

His shirts are deep shades instead of pastels with wide, deep and long collars and his ties are boldly patterned.

His advice for shoes for winter are heavy with square toes.

His final advice to men: "Men must develop an independent point of view in their choice of clothes. They cannot be dictated by advertisers, editors or their wives. Men have to experiment and adapt to achieve their own image."

JACK O'BRIAN'S

New York's Voice of Broadway

The New York baseball Mets management kiboshed a pre-season grid Jets vs. Giants intricately football game claiming it would tear up the Shea Stadium turf too savagely for the safety of the Mets' ballplayers; the same Mets' bosses have okayed a week-long circus at Shea.

Paye Dunaway's play in Kazan's "The Arrangement" will be $400,000; more than Bonnie Parker and Clyde got out of all their bank heists ... Former dictator Sukarno's wife Dewi has a no doubt chic parlor trick: for kicks, she demonstrates Oriental massages, walks on your back and all that Japanese jazz. Gotta be with the in-group, tho'.

Customers wondered where the suburban Steak Pubs chain finds such courteous help when the trend is insolence: They recruit and train local housewives (they even curtsy) ... John Huston celebrated his 62nd birthday directing his daughter in a torrid love scene in their "Walk With Love and Death" films; says it's the most passionate he's ever directed ... Jim Backus who made a tidy fortune as the voice of "Mr. Magoo" got even richer ($500,000) from the "Little Old Winemaker. Me!" radio-TV residuals ... Veronica Lake is finished with her book about H'wood; the way H'wood treated her, and knowing her swinging candor, it could be the controversial expose of the decade.

The late French star Martine Carol's widower Michael Eland has married blonde Jasmine Gilles-Noccard ... Michael Meyers, a 22-year-old delivery driver, double-parked his truck at the Paramount Rehearsal Studios on 44th St. to answer a call for a role in "Goodbye, Bye, Columbus," and he got the part—also a parking ticket ... Upcoming Broadway musical has an old problem: THE married author demands the lead go to a beauty and will doubtless make it stick, considering his hit history.

The Louis Nyes called the calling-off off ... Herman Levin (who produced "My Fair Lady" better than any musical we've ever seen) is up to his smart tricks: "The Great White Hope" which Levin's bringing to Broadway, already is being touted for a Pulitzer Prize ... 20th-Fox already has bought the film rights ... Fancy pushcart at 55th & Lexington peddles only soft drinks—and crepes Suzette.

Great old funnyman Jack Pearl lunched at Christo's and then greeted actor Larry Byden with "You're wonderful and it's an honor to know you"; the inside being, that's what Larry graciously advised Jack when he first met the very rich retired old "Baron Munchausen" ... For a fella with a million-dollar deal to film his "The Arrangement" novel, Elia Kazan should stop crossing against the lights as he did at 47th dodging speeding cars ... Sign on a West Side bus, "Encourage Youth," had its glass crashed by youthful hoodlums hurling rocks.

Flip Wilson knows he's among the overprivileged; his NBC-TV special's budget is $250,000 ... Joan Rivers' new daily talk-show will be produced by her husband Edgar Rosenberg ... Former Carnation milk babies shouldn't wind up as killer-rapist-mad-snipers but former canned milk cherub Robert F. Lyons will play just that combination in the "Pendulum" and "Judd" movies ... Making the "Mr. Chips" film in London, Peter O'Toole's suddenly sprung out with more flunkies than Sinatra.

Ann Landers

Don't make report

Dear Ann Landers: The letter you printed from "Sadder But Wiser" compelled me to write this letter. She was the mousy little housewife who felt guilty about having an affair.

I'm a high school student who knows of a similar affair — my mother's. Mom always decides to see a very late movie "alone" when Dad is out of town. Once I asked how the movie was and she got so rattled I felt sorry for her. Recently I came home unexpectedly. (I had planned to spend the night at a girl friend's house and changed my mind.) I heard the back door slam as I came in and I smelled pipe tobacco all over the place.

This afternoon I needed 50 cents and Mom wasn't home. I looked in Mom's coat pockets for change. To my horror I discovered a key to a local hotel.

Do I owe it to my dad to tell him? If I don't tell and they get a divorce I will always feel as though I could have helped save their marriage if I had spoken out.

J. K. L.

Dear J. K. L.: Don't say a word. To anyone. While you may believe the evidence is conclusive, you could be wrong. And if you are wrong you would be responsible for stirring up a hideous mess.

Dear Ann Landers: We are an average family. By "average" I mean my husband and I are at the mercy of three lazy, uncooperative, smart-mouth kids.

Our daughters (ages 13 and 15) keep us broke. The boy, aged 11, keeps us exhausted. My husband and I don't want to break their spirit or spoil their fun by being too demanding. I'm afraid, however, that we have been too lenient and now we can't get our kids to do anything that vaguely resembles work — either in or out of school.

Last week the kids suggested a "family jury" with each member of the family having one vote. Of course my husband and I always lose because the kids vote as a bloc. Can you help us teach these kids to be responsible citizens?

OUTVOTED

Dear Out: The majority rule is excellent for government, but it doesn't work well in mental institutions, prisons or families with two or more children. Adolescents not only need discipline but they want it. When children call the signals and run the family they get the impression their parents are inept. Kids who do as they please are not happy — they are confused. The best way to keep your children's feet on the ground is to put some responsibility on their shoulders.

Dear Ann Landers: My sister Mazie and her husband have had dinner at our house every Friday for the last six years. This means they have enjoyed 312 free meals over here.

We have been to their home for dinner three times. (Once was when my brother-in-law's boss gave him a turkey for Christmas. Another time, my brother-in-law shot a duck. It was too gummy to eat. And once we had a Chinese dinner which they paid us to pick up on the way over.)

Last week an out-of-town aunt was having a serious operation and I offered to take care of her children. Mazie didn't invite my husband over for a single meal. This burned me up. I told my husband, I'm through feeding them every Friday. He says Mazie will be mad because they have grown to expect it. How do I unwind a six-year habit?

THE CHUMP

Dear Chump: Find something else to do a few Fridays in a row and announce it well in advance. When you do invite Mazie tell her, "It's your turn next time," and put your dinners on an alternating basis.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Where To Go And What To Do
In The Event Of

A NUCLEAR ATTACK

In event of a nuclear attack upon the United States, you and your family need to know WHERE TO GO and WHAT TO DO. The following instructions are intended to provide you with this information. These instructions are based on the best possible use of the fallout protection now available in Monroe County.

WHAT IS FALLOUT

If a nuclear weapon explodes on or near the ground, tons of earth are drawn up with the "fireball" produced by the explosion. This earth mixes with the radioactive materials produced by the explosion, and eventually falls back to the ground as particles of "fallout." The radiation from fallout can be fatal to living things exposed to it.

PROTECTION FROM FALLOUT RADIATION

You can protect yourself by getting heavy material between yourself and the fallout particles. Many buildings have been identified as public fallout shelters. These are marked with the familiar black and yellow fallout shelter signs and contain areas in which the radiation will be reduced to a safe level. Any substantial structure provides some protection. In addition, many homes provide fallout protection. In any instance, the heavier the construction, the better the protection.

CIVIL DEFENSE INFORMATION IN TIME OF EMERGENCY

During a period of growing international tension, all normal means of communications, such as newspapers, radio and television, will be used to get civil defense information to the public.

Simply tune your AM radio to WVPO Radio Station and await instructions. All instructions and information for Monroe County will be broadcast over WVPO. Should WVPO not be on the air turn your dial to pick up the closest emergency station broadcasting. Every effort should be made by each family to obtain an AM battery operated radio, because there is a strong possibility that your electric power will be cut off.

WARNING TO TAKE SHELTER

All persons should become familiar with and know the Public Warning Signals—

1. ALERT SIGNAL:

A steady siren blast for 3 minutes or more. This indicates that residents should listen for emergency instructions over WVPO Radio Station.

2. TAKE OVER SIGNAL:

A 3 minute or more wavering siren. If you are at home, stay there, shut all doors and windows, and use the basement or a first floor room. If away from home, take shelter in the nearest building.

Individuals planning to make use of the Stocked Shelters should plan to take with them the following items: (1) Special medicines, for example, insulin, asthma medication; (2) bedding, change of clothing; toilet articles, flashlights, battery operated radio and spare batteries for same.

IMPORTANT FACTS TO REMEMBER

The time to plan for an emergency is now -- not when the emergency is upon us.

All utilities -- gas, electric and water should be shut off at the main control point in your home as soon as the Take Cover Signal is received. The best source of water is your hot water heater. If it is turned off immediately it is protected from contamination.

If there is time, fill all available containers -- wash tubs - and cover with cardboard, paper, etc.

The minimum daily requirement for water is one-half gallon per person.

PUBLIC FALLOUT SHELTERS IN MONROE COUNTY

Monroe County has a number of Public Fallout Shelters primarily for those away from home. The Federal Government has stocked these shelters with water, vitamin-enriched crackers, carbohydrate supplement, sanitation and certain medical supplies and radiological detection instruments.

WHAT TO DO IF YOU ARE IN AN AREA WHERE PUBLIC SHELTER IS NOT AVAILABLE

If you are at home, stay there and go to the best protected part. If you work in an area where public shelter is not available go to the best protected part of the nearest substantial structure.

HOW TO IMPROVISE A SHELTER AT HOME

If you take shelter in the best protected part of your home, you can add additional protection. Although this might be possible at the time you receive warning to take shelter, a certain amount of pre-planning is necessary if best results are to be achieved. NOW IS THE TIME TO DECIDE WHAT YOU WILL DO AND HOW YOU WILL DO IT.

If your home has a basement, select the corner of the basement where the outdoor ground level is highest. This is the safest place in the basement. Place boxes or drawers on top of a sturdy table or workbench and fill with heavy material, such as dirt or sand. If the sides of the basement, away from the shelter area, have more than two feet of outside wall exposure, materials should also be placed around the open sides of the table. Be very careful not to overload the table to the point of collapse.

If your home does not have a basement, it is very difficult to improvise adequate shelter and every effort should be made to go to an approved public shelter. However, if this is not possible, some protection can be obtained in the central part of the home, at ground level, furthest away from the roof and walls. Place boxes or drawers on top and around the sides of a sturdy table or workbench and fill them with heavy materials. Often a makeshift table can be made by using doors supported by cabinets or other pieces of furniture.

Youth from Pocono Pines ends stay in Australia

By EDITH BLEZ

POCONO PINES — Robert W. Baxter, son of Claude and Mary Baxter of Pocono Pines, has just returned from a year's stay in Australia as the first exchange student from the Top-O-Pocono Rotary at Blakeslee, Pa.

The folks with whom Robert spent his year, 12 families in all, were evidently very happy to have an American boy in their homes.

According to Baxter they went all out to make him comfortable and took him on many wonderful trips and outings. He became quite an expert at surfing and spent many happy weekends skiing.

Skiing in Australia is somewhat different, according to the Pocono Pines resident. There are no large ski lodges such as Camelback. Each family owns or rents a hut on the mountain. They prepare their own meals and spend the weekend in the hut.

Baxter liked the Australians. He found them very outgoing. They all welcomed him into their homes and kept him so busy he never had time to be homesick.

School different
He found school somewhat different than it is in the Poconos. Everybody wore a uniform which consisted of grey slacks, grey shirt, and blue tie and a grey sweater or blue blazer. All the boys wear their hair long.

In the morning, after lunch

and recesses everybody lined up outside the rooms for announcements. Then they marched into the class room and stood when the teacher entered. There was no cafeteria. They ate outside except when it rained or was extremely cold. Then the girls go inside, but not the boys.

Life in Australia, according to Baxter was not too different from life here. There were a few customs with which he was not acquainted but which he found enjoyable. He thoroughly enjoyed fish and chips and keeps hoping somebody will open a stand in the Poconos! The climate was somewhat different. During the summer season "down under" the temperature ran up to 120 degrees but the winter was not severe. There was very little central heating.

Letters of praise

If one can judge by the letters received by Mr. and Mrs. Baxter from the families with whom Robert stayed, the Top-O-Pocono Rotarians should be proud of their first exchange student. He was highly commended for his behavior and for the manner in which he became a member of each family. The Australians felt that he was an excellent ambassador.

One family wrote: "My wife and I think Robert is a fine boy with all the traits of a healthy teenager and has a wonderful personality. We loved having him in our home."

You should be proud that your son has the ability and dignity to either discuss or disregard criticisms of his country and yet grin at the errors your wonderful nation sometimes makes."

Another wrote: "There will be 24 rather fearful foster parents when he leaves us."

Not only did Baxter enjoy a year in Australia. On the way home he visited Rotarians in Hong Kong, New Delhi, Rome, Germany, Switzerland and London. Baxter recently ended a marvelous year and said he will be forever grateful to the men and women who provided this wonderful experience for him.

County assistance at $14.26

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG — Expenditures for public assistance in Monroe County rounded out to $14.26 per inhabitant during the past fiscal year—considerably below the statewide average of $30.80, a report by the State Department of Public Welfare indicated yesterday.

In the overall picture, total relief expenditures for Monroe counties during the year amounted to $636,208, broken down into these three prime categories: public assistance grants—$328,993; medical and burial expenditures—$240,331, and administration and "other services"—$66,884.

Moving away from the cost, or expenditure factor, Monroe County during the year was credited with a monthly average of 563 county residents receiving public assistance (cash grants)—representing 1.3 percent of the county population (against the statewide average of 3.2 percent). What type of relief were these residents of the county receiving on the average each month?

The department report shows an average monthly count of 131 Monroe counties receiving old age assistance, 44 receiving blind pensions, 312 aid-to-dependent-children assistance, 29 general assistance, and 47 coming under the aid-to-disabled program.

As a point of comparison, the public relief program in Pennsylvania has remained fairly consistent during the past quarter-century, hovering between a low of 2.0 percent of the population (1945 and 1954) to a high of 3.9 per cent (1950 and 1963).

Peak year on the relief front since the program got under way in Pennsylvania in 1932 was 16.2 percent of the population—back in 1935 when the number of relievers reached 1,597,796.

Joyce presents plan for courthouse fund

By GIL MURRAY
Record News Editor

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County's treasurer Friday revealed a financial plan which he said could save up to one million dollars if the county courthouse is expanded or relocated.

Thomas R. Joyce said the savings could be realized if the county commissioners retained a one-mill tax which is due to expire this year and which was levied to pay for an addition to Pleasant Valley Manor.

The commissioners are presently studying recommendations to either expand the present facilities at Courthouse Square, or move the county offices to Ann St. near Seventh St., Stroudsburg.

The plan to expand the present facilities is estimated to cost $1.89 million, while the relocation costs are estimated at $1.2 million, if federal funds can be obtained.

Five years
Joyce said that if the one-mill tax is retained for five years and the funds put in an escrow building account, the county would have a fund of "at least" $500,000 in five years.

He explained his fiscal scheme this way:

If the total amount of money—$1.2 million—is acquired by floating a 15-year bond issue, the county will be forced to repay two million dollars when interest charges are added.

This would have to be repaid in 15 yearly payments of $145,000.

If the county accumulates $500,000 before starting the project, the county would then only have to borrow $700,000.

This amount, Joyce said, could be borrowed on a short-term basis at a much lower rate of interest than the county would be forced to pay on a bond issue.

If the $700,000 was repaid over a seven-year period, the total amount, including interest, would amount to one million dollars. The difference between the two approaches would be one million dollars.

Joyce emphasized that he is not advocating either of the proposals—expansion or relocation—and is speaking as the county's top fiscal officer.

Another advantage
Another advantage of his fiscal plan Joyce said, would be that the county commissioners would retain complete control over the project.

He said if a bond issue is floated, the county would be required to follow the rules and regulations of the bonding house.

Joyce also pointed out that Monroe County is one of the few county's in the state without outstanding bond issues. This situation, he said, enables the county to maintain an excellent credit rating.

He said a bond issue would have some affect on that situation.

Joyce said the plan worked "extremely well" in financing the $700,000 addition to Pleasant Valley Manor.

Presently, the treasurer said a mill produces about $30,000, but after the proposed reevaluation of the county is completed this figure could rise to $150,000, he said.

"This prospect," he said, "would enable the county to repay a $700,000 loan without raising taxes."

Tax study committee to meet

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County's 12-member Tax Study Committee is expected to meet at 7 p.m. on Monday, August 19 to continue its study on ways and means to re-evaluate properties within the county.

Chief Assessor William Fetherman said Friday that the committee had appointed three sub-committees to study specific portions of a re-evaluation.

The Monroe County Commissioners recently decided to allow the assessor's office to conduct a re-evaluation at a cost of approximately $50,000. The cost for an outside firm doing the same task was estimated at $250,000.

The three sub-committees appointed to study specific areas of the re-evaluation and their members, are:

Land values—Ray Roberts, Harold Alberi, John Rinker, Gerald Possinger.

Office procedures—Warren Loney, Jack Wallie and Irving Somers.

Permits—Jack Kitchen, James Price and Harold Albert. Fetherman said the land values subcommittee will study the county's current eight classifications of land. He said the committee will probably recommend the addition of several other classifications "with new and higher market values which reflect the true market value."

Fetherman said there is currently no classification for assessment purposes on land located near interchanges. He explained that under the current land classifications, land along interchanges has a market value as low as $50 per acre. He also said that new classifications will undoubtedly be recommended for industrial and commercial acreages.

Legal technicalities
The office procedure subcommittee, Fetherman explained, will review the legal technicalities in placing homes on the assessment rolls. Currently, he said, assessors have to find whether a new home is being constructed and, when found, have to return after the home is completed in order to levy a tax.

This, Fetherman explained, is sometimes difficult, since the owner of the home has to be found first. He indicated that the problem is becoming greater with the increasing number of second homes in the county.

The sub-committee on permits, Fetherman explained, will study the uniform building permit suggested by the Tocks Island Advisory Council. The Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission has yet to recommend the uniform permits for official adoption.

Fetherman said Tax Study Committee is expected to make several recommendations to the Monroe County Commissioners on the methods of the re-evaluation.

Approved plots
During 1967, the Planning Commission also reviewed and approved 39 subdivision plots which contained 1,967 lots with an average size of about three-fourths of an acre.

Throughout the year, the commission also cooperated with four regional agencies in 23 different areas of study.

Ziolkowski stated in his annual report that the major accomplishment was "the development and preparation of an excellent mapping program, when augmented by our phase two 701 planning program, will be the keystone of our comprehensive planning program for the county."

"The second major achievement," Ziolkowski said, was the "initiation and/or completion of several important studies and programs which will provide the background information for determining our financial and physical resources in the county."

The studies he cited were: water and sewer study; county organization and fiscal analysis study; county space analysis study and the Tocks Island Planning District Study.

Commissioners seek payment of personal property tax

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners are considering obtaining tax information data from the Internal Revenue Service in an attempt to force more residents to pay a four-mill personal property tax.

During a meeting in the courthouse Friday, Commissioners' chairman Elwood Hintze said the IRS would supply financial data on all persons over 21 at a cost of 6.6 cents per taxpayer.

Hintze pointed out that last year only 900 county residents paid a total of $80,000 in personal property tax.

The tax is levied on certain personal holdings such as stocks, bonds and mortgages.

In noting that the IRS proposal will be discussed further, Hintze said he is interested in determining how many residents have filed to pay the tax this year.

He said the number has increased since the board of commissioners made the tax public some time ago.

Salaries approved
Meeting as the salary board with county treasurer Thomas R. Joyce, the commissioners approved an $80-a-week salary for Sharen A. Collier of Bangor as a secretary in the district attorney's office. She will replace Judy Fish.

Commissioner Arlington (Bud) Martin questioned the necessity of hiring a person from Northampton County, which prompted Commissioner Nancy Shukaitis to comment:

"We must have a surplus of secretaries graduating from our four local high schools."

Joyce said that the county has several applications on file, but he did not know if the applicants qualified to work in the district attorney's office.

The salary board also approved a $103-per-week salary for Lynette Voudman, a registered nurse at Pleasant Valley Manor. Doris Thomas, a nurse's aid at the manor, was given a salary increase to $66-per-week.

In connection with a proposed reevaluation of county property, Chief Assessor William Fetherman requested that the county obtain enlargements of aerial maps made by the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co. in 1966.

Scale too small

Fetherman told the commissioners that the scale of the maps is not large enough for assessing work. A sample of the enlargements would cost $57, he said.

The commissioners tabled the request until they determine if the maps are current enough for reevaluation purposes.

During the conversation, Hintze said that the estimated cost of the project, $50,000, is not in this year's budget, and Fetherman said it would take his office two years to complete the project after receiving approval of the commissioners.

Under those conditions the reevaluation will not be completed for at least three years.

It was also decided that Fetherman will require information of firms and organizations seeking tax exempt status. Fetherman said that in the past, holdings of certain organizations were exempted simply because the organization had tax-free status.

Fetherman also stressed that no person in the county over the age of 21 is automatically exempted from paying occupation taxes.

He said that elderly persons who cannot pay occupation taxes must sign an affidavit and they will then receive a zero assessment, which differs from a tax exoneration.

Fetherman said any taxpayer who feels they should be exonerated from paying taxes should take their case to their local tax collector.

Chain of command
The tax collector in turn would present the case to the taxing authorities involved in an attempt to obtain the exoneration. He said the assessor's office has no legal authority to make tax exoneration.

Joyce informed the commissioners that he has collected $103,000 in delinquent 1966 taxes. Joyce said this leaves only about $13,000 still owed.

The commissioners tabled requests from two organizations seeking payment of county-allocated money until tax revenues start to arrive.

Company "C" of the Pennsylvania National Guard had requested a $450 payment and the Pocono Mountain Vacation Bureau, $2,000.

The commissioners tabled taking action on a contract for Johnson Automatic Temperature Control, Allentown. The firm had proposed servicing the heating and air conditioning in the courthouse for five years at $550.

Honesty pays once again for taxpayer

STROUDSBURG — There is at least one completely honest taxpayer in Monroe County.

During a commissioners meeting Friday, County Solicitor Elmer D. Christine told a story of a taxpayer who wanted to pay a personal property tax on a $2,300 loan that he owed.

Of course, the county's four-mill personal property tax is levied in such a situation only on loans that are given by taxpayers.

After the situation was explained to the commissioners, the taxpayer's personal property form was amended with the $2,300 loan deleted.

More than a score of tombstones lay scattered in what appears to be disorder in the Shafer Schoolhouse Cemetery, but close investigation revealed the pits were being deliberately dug for resetting the stones. Note hole for resetting in foreground. (Staff Photo by Fred Walter)

Reported case of vandalism only caretaker hard at work

STROUDSBURG — A case of possible vandalism, followed by investigation by Stroud Township police, obviously turned into a case of "false alarm."

Police received a call Friday afternoon that 30 or more tombstones were knocked down in the Shafer Schoolhouse Cemetery.

Approaching the cemetery from a distance would apparently make the observer see a good number of tombstones scattered on the ground in the cemetery and conclude they were somehow "knocked down."

Close-up investigation of the "disorder" however showed that near each of the horizontally "placed" stones a neatly defined pit was dug in preparation for resetting of the century-aged stones.

Albert Marvin, a neighboring resident, said he noticed the disorder sometime Thursday afternoon and called the superintendent of the grounds, Daniel E. Marvin of East Stroudsburg, R.D. 3, who subsequently called the police to investigate.

No explanation
There was still no explanation for the obvious misplacement of the stones until Daniel Marvin referred investigators to a Mrs. Anna M. Hayden, Stroudsburg, R.D. 2.

Mrs. Hayden said she is responsible for getting the necessary funds for the upkeep of the cemetery and the adjoining former schoolhouse and church.

According to Mrs. Hayden, the grounds were being cared for by a Mrs. Donald Reish and her son, Bruce, of Stroudsburg R.D. 5.

"The money comes from the interest of a trust fund for the Shafer Schoolhouse property," Mrs. Hayden explained, "which is held by Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co."

Mrs. Reish explained that some of the stones needed to be reset and a request was made for additional care of the grounds.

The responsibility for this was taken by Mrs. Sam Miller, trust officer at Monroe Security and his wife.

According to Mrs. Reish, plans are being made for more landscaping in the front of the cemetery and erection of a plaque relating the historical value of the school house.

Donald W. Heller of Cherry Valley was assigned to reset the stones in concrete base which apparently is underway.

Mrs. Hayden said the property was originally donated by her great-grandfather and a trust fund was set up by the late Michael Ransbury and his wife.

Several plot plans were submitted for Supervisors' approval. In some cases only floor plans were submitted which are not necessary.

Supervisors pointed out that the submission of plans for approval according to the zoning ordinance is based on the site of the building in relation to the sides, front and back of each lot. The Board will accept information for approval if they are notified as to the distance between the building and the lot boundaries.

Donation approved
A four cent per capita donation to the Monroe County SPICA was approved. This figure will be between 85 and 88 dollars.

The site of the Barrett Township Carnival, several lots in Mountainhome lying behind the Mountainhome Post Office and Bender's Diner, has been requested by the owner, W.C. Sengle, Sr., to be rezoned as a business area.

Supervisors will submit the request to the Planning Commission; it was noted such a change would involve an amendment of the zoning ordinance.

Township bills totaling $2,280 were approved for payment. This figure includes a bill of $1,012 for repairs to the GMC fire truck.

land use which is zoned as residential and therefore cannot, according to the zoning ordinance, be used as a commercial business.

Voters may sign up at fair

STROUDSBURG — Monroe County Commissioners Friday reconsidered their decision not to hold voter registration at the West End Fair.

During a meeting in the courthouse, the commissioners agreed to send two voting registrars to the fair on Aug. 28, from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Previously, the commissioners had decided not to hold registration at the fair because in the past not too many persons took advantage of the opportunity.

The motion to hold the registration at the fair was made after Mrs. Irene Wolf, Tannersville, president of the Women's Democratic Club, said her organization thought that persons should be able to register to vote while attending the fair.

Mrs. Wolf wanted a voting set up during all three days of the fair.

By using two additional registrars, the commissioners were not forced to change the dates for other outside registration. Outside registration dates are, in addition to the fair:

Aug. 27, Chestnut Hill Elementary School, 4 to 9 p.m.; Aug. 28, Barrett Elementary Center, 4 to 9; Sept. 5, Mount Pocono Borough Building, 4 to 9, and Sept. 9, East Stroudsburg Post Office, 6 to 9.

Also, the courthouse will open for registration on Aug. 20, Aug. 26 and Sept. 3, from 6 to 9 p.m.; Sept. 13, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Sept. 14, 9 a.m. to noon, and Sept. 16, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Additionally, residents can register to vote at the courthouse daily from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until Sept. 16, when the registration period ends.

McCool feels dope present in county

STROUDSBURG—The chief of the Monroe County Probation Department said Friday that quantities of narcotics are available locally, but that he does not know how many persons are actually taking dope.

In response to a question during a meeting of the county commissioners, Henry McCool said he believes dope is available, but that he has no facts to prove his position.

He said that when the probation department acquires any knowledge of dope, the information is immediately turned over to the district attorney and police officials.

McCool said this is done regardless of the ages of the persons involved. He cited such an instance about a year ago, and the information eventually led to narcotics arrests.

McCool appeared before the commissioners to give them a report on a Juvenile Officers' Institute he attended recently at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

Commissioner Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis asked McCool if juvenile delinquency always starts in the home.

The probation official answered that nobody knows the exact causes of delinquency and that several theories have support among juvenile officials.

"It is actually frightening how little we know about juvenile delinquency. Every child is different. The home, school, community and even the child himself can be influenced," he said.

Third annual report shows 21,437 county lots recorded

STROUDSBURG — A total of 5,145 acres of land have been subdivided, 12,484 lots plotted and 21,437 lots recorded in Monroe County between 1960 and 1967.

The statistics are a part of the third annual report completed recently by the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission.

The statistics included in the 41-page report, adds impetus to the Planning Commission's oft-repeated thesis that Monroe County is undergoing a seeming nightmare of change.

The Planning Commission, in its third year of operation, began to set the foundations for the future planning of the expanding county.

Leonard Ziolkowski, former executive director of the Planning Commission, completed the third annual report of the commission's activities throughout 1967 before assuming his new position with the Economic Development Council of Northeast Pennsylvania.

In the annual report, Ziolkowski cites that major accomplishments of the commission throughout last year the acquisition of "... the tools and research materials to conduct a comprehensive plan for the future growth of the county."

The foundation for the comprehensive plan was set with the $62,000 federal grant received under the 701 planning assistance program.

Under this program, the county completed a $10,500

basic mapping of the county; a $4,000 organization and fiscal analysis; the $27,500 Tocks Island Planning District Study

Basketball star, coaches thrill attendance at camp

By ELLIOT BROWN
Pocono Record Reporter

CANADENSIS — You could tell by their questions and see in their eyes a great deal of respect, a certain amount of awe, and even a twinge of jealousy.

The kids at Top-O-The-Pocono's Basketball Camp knew to whom they were speaking Thursday.

All-American Larry Miller, Penn State head coach John Bach, and Princeton University head coach Pete Carril were there to teach them basketball. Their audience was there to learn.

Miller, a former Catasauqua High standout, has since his high school days gone on to far greater things. All-American at North Carolina, a team which finished second in the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. behind UCLA.

Miller was the only man on the All-Tournament team not from UCLA. He is now signed with the Los Angeles Stars of the American Basketball Assn.

Miller popular

More than teaching fundamentals, Miller was at the camp to answer questions. While extremely respectful, the kids seemed to find it easier to speak with him than the two coaches, maybe because he was a little closer to their own age.

One of the first questions asked the six-foot, four-inch, 215 pound Miller was why he chose the American Basketball Assn. over the older National Basketball Assn.

"I was a first draft choice of the ABA," he said, "but not of the NBA, because of my size. I figured even if the NBA did draft me high enough, they wouldn't be able to play enough."

"Besides," he continued, "I didn't care for status. In basketball today there are so many great players, many of them can't play at all. In the ABA, I'll be able to play right away. I don't like the bench, and I'd probably have a few years of it in the NBA."

"Finally," he said, "no matter what they say, the ABA won't fold. They have enough and are willing to lose money for five years or so. I think there's more opportunity in the ABA."

Miller said that his reasons for choosing the ABA, and those of the coaches who transferred there were probably the same: "More opportunity and, after a certain point, more money."

Miller discussed his high school training program, a point of interest to the young players, all of whom are in high school. "I was really lucky," Miller

"While I was in the eighth grade, I played with a team of Allentown Jets and former Globe Trotters."

"Also, I used a weighted jacket, lifted weights, played four or five hours a day, and did a lot of running," Miller said. The results were obvious.

Many questions

Miller fielded a lot of questions about UCLA's great Lou Alcindor. "Without Alcindor," he said, "we'd have run UCLA off the court. He is the devastating force in the game, he changes the whole makeup."

Miller said, however, that he had heard many of the pros don't like Alcindor. "For example," he said, "you know what (Wilt) Chamberlain could do if he got mad at Alcindor, but if he's relaxed like he usually is, Alcindor could eat him up."

Miller also spoke briefly on his personal attitude. "I never think anything but the top," he said firmly. "I want to be the best basketball player in the world. Even though I know I can never be the best, the higher I aim, the closer I can come to it."

Bach and Carril were less talk and more action than Miller. Bach gave a class on screening, while Carril taught fundamentals of offense.

Bach is the new head coach at Penn State. Prior to this, he was head coach at Fordham and the school's athletic director. He served this year as chairman of the National Invitational Tournament.

Why, he was asked, would a man give up a "Secure" position at Fordham to take a new job at Penn State.

"I wanted to stay in coaching," Bach said. "I had an agreement with Fordham that I would give it up to devote my energies to the construction of a new gym, but they moved it from third to eighth priority, and I'm not a patient man, I guess." At any rate, when the gym moved, so did Bach.

Two types of coaches

"Besides," he said, "the guy who said 'There are only two types of coaches: Those who have been fired and those who are about to be' was right. Who says Fordham was 'secure'?"

Bach, during his demonstration, put an emphasis on teamwork. "Even if you're selfish and hogish and only want to take care of yourself," he said, "unless you set the screen for others, your opportunities are decreased."

Carril, who has been Eastern High coach, Reading High coach, Lehigh University coach, and presently is head of the Princeton University basketball fortune, answered a question on the difference between players in high school and college.

"Except for age, maturity, and skill development," he said, "there is no difference. I coach the game the same at every level. The guys who want to work hard and play basketball are the ones you want, wherever you coach."

Both of the coaches agreed that basketball camps do help. "It gives a new dimension to the game not found in school," Bach said. "A player is introduced to a wide variety of skills to see. In a week he can't be can't perfect them all, but he can take his choice."

Carril agreed that "a boy who can't go to camp and come home better one week later shouldn't go to camp. It isn't the sport's fault either."

All three of the men were in camp as part of a program devised by camp owner "Chick Daniels, East Stroudsburg High School coach. The camp runs for five one-week sessions "which are all sold out."

On Thursday, it was only a bunch of green high school kids watching men who made it in the sport of basketball.

But no one can tell what future greats sat among them.

Eagles to play Lions Sunday in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Eagles and the Detroit Lions meet here Sunday in an exhibition game originally scheduled for Mexico City but canceled apparently due to the threat of student disorders.

The game will be played at 3 p.m. at Franklin Field, homefield of the Eagles.

An expected 100,000 persons had been expected to witness the game at Aztec Stadium in Mexico City on Sunday. Stadium officials attributed the cancellation to "circumstances beyond our control."

A source connected with the game, however, indicated government authorities ordered the cancellation because they feared permitting a large crowd to gather in one place after fighting between students and paratroopers in the streets of Mexico City last week. About 100 persons were injured and at least one student was killed in the disorders.

Amateur shoots into lead in $125,000 golf classic

Akron, Ohio (UPI) — Bill Campbell, a tall, hot-shooting amateur from Huntington, W. Va., muscled his way into a one-stroke lead in the second round of the $125,000 American Golf Classic Friday with a three-under-par 67, but some of the big name professionals were still in contention.

Campbell, admitting he had his bags packed for the return home in case he didn't make the cut, was an early starter on this hot and sultry day at the Firestone Country Club. But his 70-67-137 withstood the challenge of the game's great pros.

It was the first time an amateur led at the end of a PGA tournament round since young Marty Fleckman paced the U.S. Open after the third round at Baltusrol in 1967. The 45-year-old insurance man also was in great shape to become the first amateur winner of a pro tournament since Doug Sanders won the Canadian Open in 1955 as an amateur.

Campbell, who had never played the difficult par 70, 7,180-yard Firestone course before this tournament, taught the pros a few lessons by finishing one-up over Canadian George Knudson and Negro star Lee Elder.

Area host to soccer hopefuls

STROUDSBURG—The second annual Eastern Development Soccer Camp, featuring the 25 finest 17- and 19-year-old soccer players on the east coast, will open for one week Sunday at the Pocono Sports Camp, N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg.

According to John McKeon, head soccer coach at East Stroudsburg State College and head coach for this special program, the camp is sponsored jointly by the United States Olympic Development Committee and the U.S. Soccer-Football Assn.

Boys from Maine to Florida, chosen by their state Olympic committees, will participate in the camp. Four practices a day will be held, McKeon said.

But the week of intensified practice will culminate Aug. 21, in a game in Yankee Stadium against "another select team."

The Yankee Stadium game will be a preliminary to the Real Madrid-New York Generals game.

Other camps

McKeon said a similar camp will begin the week after this in St. Louis for the Midwest, and a week after that in San Jose, Calif. for the far west. Last year's camp, the first, was held in Honesdale.

Assisting McKeon will be Al Miller of Hartwick College, an ESSC graduate and a former captain of the soccer team; Chick Fallon, head coach at Northeast Catholic High School in Philadelphia; and Dittmar Cramer, of Switzerland, an international coach chosen especially by the International.

The boys will arrive in camp all day Sunday. An orientation meeting is planned for 8 p.m., McKeon said.

ESSC booters to oppose English team

EAST STROUDSBURG — Another season of soccer will begin at East Stroudsburg State College on Wednesday, Sept. 4, the date of the team's return to campus.

Head coach John McKeon Thursday listed the pre-season schedule for the team during September.

The second annual soccer clinic is planned for Sept. 7, McKeon said. Last year, he added, it attracted more than 200 high school players, and registration so far indicates an even larger attendance this year. The clinic will begin at 10 a.m.

On either Sept. 10 or 11, McKeon said, ESSC will play St. Luke's College of Exeter, England. St. Luke's was the championship team of England this year, McKeon said, and the ESSC game will be its first on a tour of the United States.

On Sept. 21, a pre-season tournament will be held at ESSC including Hardwick College of New York, runners-up last year in the NCAA small college division; Springfield College of Springfield, Mass.; and the team from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. quarter-finalists on the university level of the NCAA.

ever for the extra money.

The 54-hole tourney, which gets underway today, is being contested over the tough 6,954-yard, par-77 Concord course, the biggest layout the gals have ever been asked to tackle.

Kathy Whitworth and Carol Mann, battling for top money-winning honors on the tour, head the field, which includes four amateurs.

Ed Furgol, the resident pro and a former U.S. Open champion, said he didn't think "half of them will break 80."

The course for the women was shortened by 251 yards from the distance the men pros play and four par-four holes were made par fives and a par-three was relaxed to four

Hoe, cultivator best weed killers

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Record Garden Correspondent

CHECK THOSE WEEDS — The best weed killer you can use in the flower or vegetable garden is the hoe or cultivator. Hoe them while they're young and you can keep them under control.

Best time to pull weeds is when the soil is wet, such as after a rain or a good soaking. Right now, one of the most persistent weeds is the "pussley," or Purslane (wild portulaca), a sprawling plant with thick succulent stems and leaves. It pulls out easily if the soil is moist, but breaks off if the soil is dry, and within a week or so, it'll be right back.

In Mexico, "pussley" is recognized for its food value and offered for sale in the markets. Many home gardeners eat purslane, a good way to get rid of a bad weed. The whole plant is harvested, washed, boiled and salted, and a few of them make a good, generous meal for any hungry group.

MORNING GLORY NOTES: If the bottom leaves of your morning glories are turning yellow, it might be due to too much water, or poor drainage. Keep the soil uniformly moistened, but never allow water to stand around the roots for any length of time.

A sickly yellow color now could mean an infestation of red spider mites. Spray plants with Kelthane, tops and bottoms. Also, give the vines a feeding of liquid plant food such as 23-19-17, or similar balanced fertilizer to get the green color back.

A GOOD HOUSE PLANT: More home gardeners are discovering the value of the Red or "Flame African Violet". Episcia, a handsome trailing greenhouse and house plant which does resemble the violet, except that it is more handsome.

Pronounced e-pisk-kee-ah or epy-see-a or e-pis-see-a (the last one most common), it likes a rich loamy loam, mixed with peat, leaf mold and sand. Has the same light requirements as the violet, and is very touchy about being chilled. Do not expose to temperatures less than 60 degrees. Water from top or bottom, using warm water.

You can start new plants by rooting single leaves in water, sand or vermiculite. Mature plants send out frequent runners with little new plants on the ends. Cut these off and pot them in sand, peat or perlite.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "Our maple leaves have developed brown edges. Please tell us what the trouble is."

Answer: Could be leaf scorch, due to hot, drying winds. Or salt injury, exhaust fumes from road traffic, lack of water. Keep tree watered and fed during the summer months.

Steve McQueen and Faye Dunaway, the "Bonnie and Clyde," are the stars of "The Thomas Crown Affair," an exciting film about a big bank heist. Now showing at the Sherman Theater in Stroudsburg. It is being released through United Artists, an entertainment subsidiary of Transamerica Corporation. Adv.

Your Horoscope

By Francis Drake

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Things will run smoothly in some areas, roughly in others. In all, however, maintain serenity of disposition and manner. Rewards for your efforts promised soon.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Don't try to cover too much territory at once but, with well-planned procedure, aim for top goals. Going off on tangents will slow up your progress.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — Being faithful to a trust brings its own reward. So, whether or not your efforts seem to be appreciated, keep right on — with integrity and consistent endeavor. Your merits are piling up.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — Some interference with your plans indicated, but take it in stride. What you do with your own talents is of first importance. Use THEM well, then note where other puzzle pieces fit.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Putting "heart and soul" into your activities is fine — IF you don't over tax yourself. Set a reasonable pace and follow it calmly, confidently. You will achieve even more than you can if hurried or anxious.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — Planetary influences point to new interests. Make sure you are ready for them — but without slighting current obligations. Don't let moods cause misunderstandings.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — One of those days which you can make — or break — for yourself. You can be vital and strong or surrender to lethargy and indifference. It's up to you!

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 23 (Scorpio) — You can run an efficient, flexible program if you are your innately logical self, and will keep your mind free of irrelevancies. Unusual ideas or methods, properly presented, could win you new laurels now.

NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 23 (Sagittarius) — Increasing advantages indicated, but some may be hidden, so you will have to ferret them out for yourself. A good day for research and expansion.

DECEMBER 24 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Many skirmishes can be lost, but the final battle gloriously won. You may face trials and opposition now, but work toward that wonderful conclusion!

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — A splendid period for capitalizing on your fine abilities, displaying your versatility. Just one admonition: Avoid impulsive action; it could lead to needless errors.

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — Originality is not absolutely necessary to the successful conclusion of an undertaking. You may do better by revitalizing an old method, up-dating past procedures.

YOU BORN TODAY are natural leaders, and often take unconventional routes to reach your goals. You usually act smartly and with precision, but can antagonize associates through sarcasm and arrogance, if not careful. Try to be more patient with those who are less gifted than yourself. The Leoite can become a clever mimic, or entertainer in other fields; can also excel as executive, dramatic critic, in the law or as a salesman. Birthdate of: Isaac Walton, sportsman, writer; John Dryden, English poet.

New England colonial—New England Colonial offers traditional features, including dormers and weathervane cupola, plus breezeway between house and two-car garage, behind which is a large terrace. Front porch, breezeway and terrace all have flagstone floors.

Breezeway charm—View from rear terrace looking through breezeway to the front porch. Sliding glass doors at left lead to the dining room; door at right leads to the garage.

House of the Week

Attic turned into two bedrooms

By ANDY LANG

The biggest demand in the housing field these days is for homes with three bedrooms. This traditional house fits into that popular category, with the three bedrooms on the main floor.

But it offers fourth and fifth bedrooms to those who wish to utilize an expansion attic, either at the time of construction or at some later time.

Basically a dormered Colonial of the type prevalent in New England hundreds of years ago, it includes a two-car garage separated from the house by a flagstone-floored breezeway.

This breezeway could be left completely open in keeping with its designation; screened as a porch; partly walled with louvers or glass as a sunroom; or even fully enclosed as a family room. It could very well be considered as a future do-it-yourself project.

Stone, brick and wood siding are used for the facade, with the New England tradition enhanced by a weathervane cupola, trim shutters, a forthright brick chimney and well-proportioned dormers on the expansion floor. The dimensions of 85 feet, two inches by 35 feet, four inches include the house, garage, breezeway and large terrace behind the garage, but the main floor living area is a compact 1,476 square feet.

The L-shaped kitchen is easily reached directly from the front or back doors. The dinette area is near the rear window. To the side is the stairway to the basement, convenient from both the kitchen and the back door.

The living room is to the left of the center entrance hall, with a fireplace at the far end. In the traditional mold, there is a wide archway between the living room and the dining room, which also is accessible from the kitchen.

But tradition gives way to the modern look in the sliding glass doors that lead from the dining room to the terrace and breezeway, permitting easy movement for the family and guests to the outdoors for relaxation, play or meals.

There's a barbecue in the breezeway area next to the chimney.

Three bedrooms are to the right of the center hall. The master bedroom has the quiet corner, well buffered by closets walls and its own bathroom from the rest of the wing. The family bathroom is off the bedroom hall.

All bedrooms have ample closet space, with a walk-in closet in the main bedroom. Unusual in the design is that one of the two other bedrooms on this floor is slightly larger than the master bedroom, making it excellent for two youngsters if necessary.

On the expansion floor, there are two bedrooms, more closets and attic eave storage space. The upper bathroom, utilizing every inch of one of the dormers, includes a stall shower, corner vanity and alcove toilet.

An easy resale potential is part of the original plan created by architect Lester Cohen. Even if the attic is not immediately finished the house offers prospective buyers a choice of three bedrooms all on one floor or three bedrooms plus the planned space for two more.

Z-53 STATISTICS
Design Z-53 has a living room, dining room, kitchen, three bedrooms, two baths and center and bedroom halls, totaling 1,470 square feet of living area. Also at ground level are a front porch, a breezeway, rear terrace and two-car garage, all within the over-all dimensions of 85 feet, two inches by 35 feet, four inches. Plans are included for utilization of the expansion attic into two bedrooms, a bath and plenty of closet and storage space.

The flush tank in the very large majority of residential bathrooms differs very little from that used in the days when plumbing first moved inside. It fills with water, which is sent rushing into the toilet bowl when a handle is pressed. And each of these tanks has a loose cover on top, so that it can be easily removed whenever a repair is needed, which seems to be more often than anything else in a house.

Most common of the annoyances resulting from trouble within the tank is the continuous dripping of water into the bowl. After taking off the tank cover, see whether the water level is higher than the overflow. Vertical tube you'll see there. If it is, water is going down that tube into the bowl.

The metal or plastic float at the end of a horizontal rod may have lost its buoyancy because it has sprung a leak. Unscrew it from the rod and shake it to see whether there is water in it. If so, a new float is in order. If it appears to be in sound condition, bend the rod to which the float was attached. Bend it downwards, using both hands and working very carefully so as not to throw the entire tank mechanism out of alignment. Replace the float, flush the tank and the trouble may have disappeared.

Another cause of this dripping is a defective valve at the top of the supply pipe, by which water enters the tank. It may only need a new washer. Before you attempt to replace it, shut off the water at the valve under the tank or—if it doesn't have one—at the main shut-off valve of the house. (You can get Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Make Simple Plumbing Repairs," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743.)

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

QUESTION: Several years ago, I installed ceramic tiles on the walls and floor of a stall shower. I used portland cement mortar to hold the tiles and it worked very well. The tiles are still solidly attached to the floor and walls even though the shower is used very often.

Recently, I decided to install ceramic tiles half way up the bathroom wall. I haven't bought the tiles yet, but when I looked them over at a store recently, the man behind the counter suggested that I used what he called dry-set mortar instead of the kind I used before.

Can you tell me the difference between the two mortars?

ANSWER: Portland cement mortar is the conventional time-tested material for setting tile. There are several other types of newer mortars and adhesives for the same purpose. If you recall, you probably had to soak the tiles in water before installing them with the portland cement mortar. This was to prevent them from drawing moisture from the mortar before it set properly. If you again were doing a stall shower, portland cement mortar probably would be best, since it is not affected by water once it has cured.

Dry-set mortar's main ingredient also is portland cement, but it is formulated so that it will set without the necessity of soaking the tiles in water. It is good for most wall installations, but especially recommended for use on masonry or concrete surfaces. There are other materials for attaching tiles to walls, including a water-resistant organic adhesive. However, it can be applied only to a very smooth surface, since the final tile surface will reflect any irregularities in the backing.

A more expensive product that is highly recommended is epoxy mortar, excellent for heavy-duty installations. An important point to remember: whichever type of mortar or adhesive you use, be sure to get a grout that is compatible with it, as some grouts do not work satisfactorily with some mortars. It's usually a good idea to purchase all your materials in the same place.

(You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "All About Ceramic Tile," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 477, Huntington, N. Y. 11743.)

Dreisbach landscape painter

MOUNTAINHOME — As the Poconos for generations have, provided an inspiration for beautiful painting, they do still more certainly, for those who have lived their lives in the area.

Indeed, in the case of Clarence Dreisbach of Mountainhome, a Pocono life has brought a greater sensitivity to beautiful subjects far outside the mountains.

A visit to Dreisbach's studio presents a highly realistic view of places as diverse as a highland loch of Scotland, the Allentown Fair, and a Florida cypress swamp.

In a time when highly abstract pieces bring, what seems to many, an inordinate amount of attention, the Poconos have an artist who believes that a landscape is beautiful because of its appearance to one's eye. "I've done abstract pieces, but I don't like them. My purpose in art is to be realistic."

But the realism is not harsh, nor does it even vaguely resemble works of the impressionists. One can closely examine the technique yet be unable to describe it exactly; but a medium-size canvas of a Pocono Creek scene is highly convincing that its vital serenity has been set down. And to be certain, many others have seen that same quality.

Dreisbach has brought his work to the Boston and Springfield Museums of Fine Art, the Pennsylvania State Museum, and the Eggleston Galleries in New York, in addition to many others.

Carbon County Nature

The artist was born in Union Hill, Carbon County and studied with Orlando G. Wales at the Baum Art School. Besides his alma mater, Dreisbach has taught at the Allentown Community College and the Wyoming Institute of Fine Arts.

However, it is only natural that he should prefer the informality of his own studio.

"Her I am my own boss and I can paint whatever I want, when I choose." But presently some 50 years of painting experience are lavished on slightly less than 100 students, meeting in four separate weekly classes.

"We have classes from Memorial Day until November, and the most satisfying experience is to bring regular students from as far away as Lancaster." Unlike many teachers, Dreisbach is unconcerned that students might imitate his style. "I think you develop your own technique, so I prefer to show each student separate steps instead of just lecturing. I keep a couple of my own paintings in progress for different groups in a class."

Summer classes

The present summer classes at Mountainhome started 10 years ago, and an average student is able to finish a painting in one session. Nuns remain the master's favorite pupils. "We have a number of Sisters come from Marywood, and I think one of the most picturesque sights is to see them busily working on the lawn among twenty five or so, students, on a sunny afternoon."

Even without attending a class, an art lover should not by-pass a visit to the studio.

"I've found that people have to bring back a piece of the Poconos," Dreisbach continues, "and the prospective buyer is especially fortunate. I can't decide if my favorite subject is the Swiftwater or Brodhead Creek. There's something about the sound and sight of a creek bed that's irresistible."

Yet of course, as mentioned, so many other places are represented at the studio that one might have difficulty in making a choice. If you can't make up your mind between a mountain scene or a Pennsylvania covered bridge, there's always the alternative of a deep-purple and precisely petalled lilac sprig — all so real on canvas.

Austria has 1,751 cable cars, chair lifts and mountain railways.

Lake at Tobyhanna State Park

State parks popular locations

TOBYHANNA — The legacy of long past Pocono ice industry has left two very beautiful lakes which form the heart of Tobyhanna and Gouldsboro State Parks.

The lakes of 170 and 255 acres respectively, now provide swimming, boating and fishing, and all three sports are slightly out of the ordinary in most other parks.

Few Pocono beaches can boast of their pure white sand, and the quantity lavished upon the bather is enormous. Park Superintendent Kenneth Fultz stated, "We have just laid 400 tons of sand on Tobyhanna and have ordered 900 for Gouldsboro."

While no motor boating is permitted, the greenest novice can rent one of the park's boats for a slight fee. Besides the available flatboats, canoes and sails are a common sight.

Finally, in addition to the more common fare of bass, pike, perch and catfish, the fisherman in Gouldsboro Lake must be prepared for an unusual treat, the muskellunge. Hooking a "muskie" is often more difficult than landing him.

Many camp sites

Besides the water sports, an important function of Tobyhanna is to provide some 140 campsites for its visitors. Campsites are situated on a loop near the lake, permitting the camper to fan out in exploration of the park's 4,000 acres of wilderness. And the wilderness is criss-crossed with paths for hiking and exploring.

Tobyhanna Park was opened in 1949, having formerly been an Army artillery range. Fultz is proud of the cooperation given by campers. "We have few problems here. The litter is not serious and there are only a few who bring alcoholic beverages."

Plans are in the offing for a complete water distribution and sewage treatment systems, yet there are no immediate plans to convert Gouldsboro Park into a camping ground.

The foreman added, "We're never too crowded, and we were only full eight days in 1967." Water sports, cleanliness and uncrowded conditions, how very fitting for a Pocono park.

Theater productions

Pocono Playhouse (Mountainhome) — Shirley Booth in "The Desk Set," through Aug. 10. "The Little Foxes," Aug. 12 through Aug. 17.
Pocono Crest Playhouse

Radio," Aug. 7, 8, 10, 11 (closed Friday, Aug. 9).

Newfoundland Arts Theater (Newfoundland) — Pocono Community Players in "Come Blow Your Horn," Aug. 9 through 10.

FLY FISHING LOCATIONS

CARBON COUNTY — Mud Run, 2-6 miles in State forest area.

MONROE COUNTY — Big Bushkill Creek, six miles on the Rensselaer Falls Scout Reservation property except for 200 yards on each side of the falls. McMichael's Creek, two miles from Rt. 80 Bridge upstream to west end of Glen Brook Country Club property. Upper Tobyhanna Creek, 1 1/4 miles between Tobyhanna Lakes number one and number two.

WAYNE COUNTY — Dyberry Creek, one mile from Widmer property line, about one mile below Tanner's Falls, downstream to Mary Wilcox Bridge. Butternut Creek, 2.5 miles from bridge on LR63004, downstream to mouth.

Big tramway to be built

PAGE, ARIZ. (UPI) — The first aerial tramway ever to be constructed in a National Recreational Area will be ready in April, 1969, to reveal to gondola riders many of the majestic and heretofore inaccessible natural beauties of Glen Canyon.

The 2,170-foot long tramway will span the 1,500-foot wide canyon and descend 700 feet from the canyon rim upper terminal to the bank of the scenic and fast-flowing Colorado.

Fishing, boating, parking and river tour facilities for visitors to the canyon are being built.

Bavarian crystal on display

Joan Marie Shop truly unique

MOUNT POCONO — A walk down Main St. in Mount Pocono can suddenly become much like a walk down Fifth Ave. in New York.

That is, if you should look in on the Joan Marie Shop.

There is here no larger nor more exquisite collection of finery to be found outside a large city; in fact, some pieces are solely manufactured and imported by the shop's owner.

Bavarian crystal is such a line, and its beauty is as unique as its rarity in the United States. It is the "Rembrandt of crystal," with delicately hand engraved hunting scenes on hand cut and polished crystal.

The Kenya series offers virtually every shape of ware from vases to mugs, each sporting different animals and an appropriate scene. The same crystal is available in a separate American design with occasional pieces depicting horse, rider, Texas steer and trumpeting elephant.

Still another bonus is the heavier and more elaborately shaped Bergkristal, in Americana and Kenya.

Wider selection

Yet a still wider selection comes in Bohemian lead crystal from Czechoslovakia. There would be little sense in attempting to describe its highly intricate pattern, save to say its precise cuttings are so delicate they could not be machine produced, but the cuts are so perfect they do not seem cut by hand. Of course some oil paintings, reminiscent of photographs, have an element of this same artistry. And with Joan-Marie the crystal's precision is to be found elsewhere in her furniture.

Louis XIV set a standard in furnishings unmatched in pure elegance, and that elegance again comes about in the shop's secretaries, commodes, dressers and desks.

Such carved, honey-polished wood could only be imported from France, but a second style complements in strident contrast. It is the antique Mediterranean, dark, husky and hand-carved. With an even wider selection, the Mediterranean presents intricate carvings cut deep into heavy wood. An especially unusual screen consists of 12 panels covered with hand-tooled leather and painted with the signs of the Zodiac.

Antique laces is still another specialty. Prices in the thousands of dollars for some framed pieces, is a polite way of saying that they are not for sale. But there one of a kind patterns are unavailable elsewhere.

The Venetian, French and

Maltese silk laces are well balanced. Different pieces of antique lace are on sale.

Staring through the gallery window, two green glass eyes peer from a giant tiger rug; a leopard companion is slightly smaller but just as colorful. These pieces have been brought from the Safari Room which boasts a life size semi-porcelain leopard. Zebra and Impala hides add more than a touch of realism.

A visit to the Joan-Marie Galleries is at least a highly visual experience. It is a display of some of the finest contemporary art craft produced today.

Antique Lore

Specific charm found within world of glass

By RUTH KAY

The world of glass has a very distinct and specific charm, a charm that is chiefly derived for color.

Glass is beautiful because of its high refractive power, its lustre and sparkle.

Table glass worthy of the name is blown. Molded or pressed glass is the cheapest of all kinds and does not belong to this class of artistic products.

A glass collector's knowledge is acquired gradually and comes from seeing and handling many pieces. He depends upon the feel of the surface or the "metal" as it is called.

An expert glass collector feels for the pontil-mark, a roughness in the center of the foot where the glass while still hot was knocked off the iron rod called pontil, through which the glass is blown. The rougher and larger the pontil-mark the older is the piece of glass.

Any piece of fine glass gives a rich vibrant note when struck; no two pieces have the same sound.

One of many sought after items by collectors: Trivets-stands for pots or dishes at the fireplace or stands for pressing irons. The early ones are wrought iron.

Above is a rare wine goblet blown from a heavy gather of non-lead glass of dark greenish cast; eighteenth century German form having six small tears in the bowl's thick base, large hollow inverted baluster, and high domed foot. Attributed to John Frederick Amelung and Company, circa 1788.

Increased service

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways has increased service between New York and St. Thomas and St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands from three to four flights daily. A 17-day round trip excursion fare costs $140.

Ireland Popular among tourists

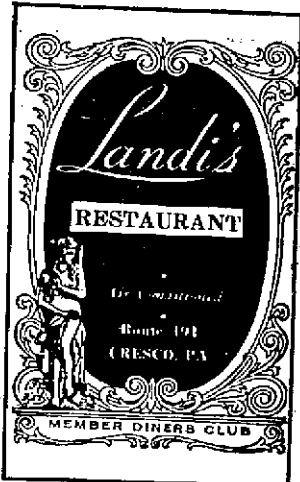

NEW YORK (UPI) — Travel to Ireland and Britain apparently has not been slowed by appeals to Americans to confine trips to the western hemisphere, according to Irish International Airlines.

Eastbound traffic from North America on the Irish carrier in April was up 37 per cent over last year, reports Brendan O'Kelly, Vice President Sales. May figures were on a level with 1967 and indications are that traffic for the peak season will be slightly higher than last year, O'Kelly said.

Lake Naomi grew from wild forest

By EDITH BLEZ

POCONO PINES — There is so much interesting history in the Poconos it will be years before the entire story is told. But there is one story which should be told before the people who lived it have forgotten it.

There are so many excellent and beautiful lakes in the Poconos but there is one which has a history matched by no other I am quite sure.

Lake Naomi in Pocono Pines where so many sail boat races are held and where there are no motor boats, has a story which is quite heartwarming and lovely to relate.

Back in the summer of 1882 Rufus Wilder Miller, then a student at Lafayette College, wanted a summer vacation in the mountains. His father was Thomas Thompson Miller of Easton, a hardware merchant, who had often driven to this section of Pennsylvania to fish for trout.

He came by horse and buggy. He knew where his son could find rest and quiet and the nature he loved. Miller directed his son and his friend, George Laubach, whose father was the owner of a large department store in Easton, to Blakeslee. The first day they drove to Tamersville and stayed at the old Inn and then up Sullivan Trail to Laurel Inn where they met Alice Stauffer the daughter of the famous "Ike" Stauffer who was called "The King of the Poconos".

Later the young men went on to Blakeslee and found several school teachers who were summering there and they stayed all summer.

Trout fishing

Sometime during that summer Rufus came to find his father who was trout fishing in the streams near what is now Pocono Pines. While walking through the woods together, T.T. Miller told his son he had heard that "Ike" Stauffer, the father of the glamorous Alice, was going to lumber the whole mountain top and why didn't they do something about it?

In 1883 T.T. Miller purchased 500 acres which included a small farm house. The house later became a summer haven for the Miller family and their friends, especially for fishing.

T.T. Miller had three sons,

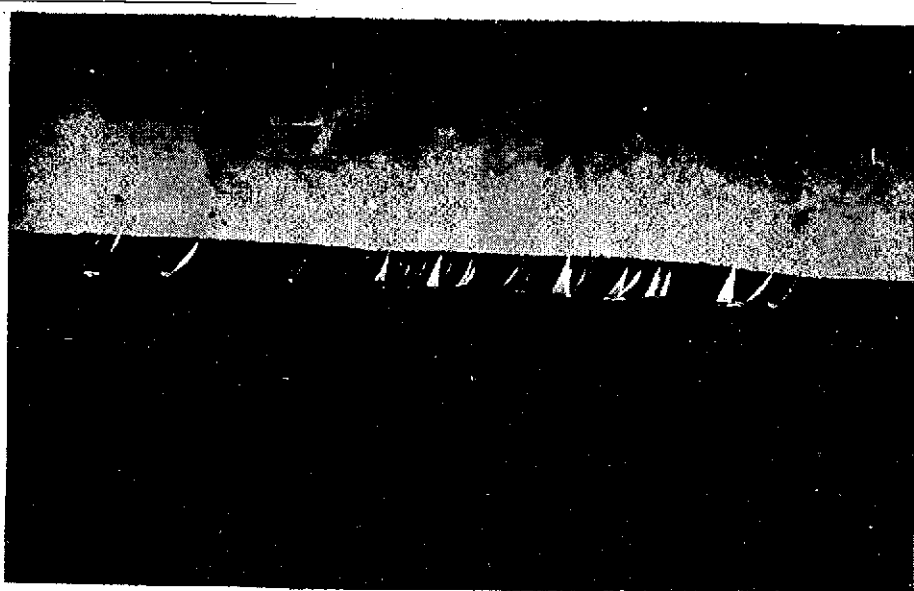

Edwin, Frank and Rufus. Later Rufus went in to the ministry and became well known in Reading and Philadelphia in the Reformed Church. The other son, Frank Comfort Miller, who had been in the jewelry business in Frenchtown, purchased the family farm house from his father and turned it into a summer boarding house. The place was called Naomi Pines House.

This name was chosen by T.T. Miller because the hamlet really had no name. Further down the road there was a small section which had been called Thompkinsville where there had been a clothespin mill. T.T. Miller chose the name of Naomi Pines because of his love of the story of Naomi in the Bible and the pines he had purchased to save.

In a short time the Naomi Pines House became quite a famous resort managed by Frank C. Miller and his son. Guests came from Easton and Philadelphia and New York to enjoy the sweet cool air of the Poconos. Guests came via the railroad, getting off at Pocono Summit where they were met by a shiny buckboard pulled by a gorgeous pair of black horses. Eventually in 1908 a macadam road was built by the state, more direct than Sullivan Trail. It took about 10 minutes to come from the station by car. It had formerly taken an hour by horse and buggy.

There were several streams nearby where trout fishing was very good. The Tuckhannock Creek was close to the boarding house which was a wonderful place for the Miller children and the guests to play during the summer time.

Later around 1893 the brothers, Rufus and Frank conceived the idea of making a lake by combining the waters of the various streams that came from the lands beyond the pines and joined to make Tuckhannock Creek.

To do this they had to buy up the various farms over which the lake would flow. Several engineers insisted it could not be done; it was thought to be impossible. Finally one engineer, Marshall Young, said that by making a 20,000-foot retaining wall on one side, a 100-foot dam and spill way, the lake water could be retained.

This was done and the huge trees were cut down and hewed and burned. One story is told

Skill abundant at McCool's Rifle Range

HENRYVILLE — One sultry July afternoon, a visitor to McCool's Rifle Range at Henryville, stopped in at the shop after having placed on target all but one bullet out of many spent rounds fired from a .30 rifle.

He was exultant at his marksmanship, but now was a chance for a talk with the range's young manager, Tim McCool.

Tim McCool, an expert marksman

Harness racing entries flooding Wayne's fair

HONESDALE — Wayne County Fair Race Secretary A. H. Perkins reports horse entries flooding the fair committee for the three days of harness racing at the 100th Wayne County Fair coming up on Tuesday August 13.

Harness Racing fans can look forward to seeing some of the finest pacers and trotters in the east on the historic track at Honesdale Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, August 14, 15, and 16.

In keeping with its more than century old tradition of retaining the best of the old, while constantly introducing modern innovations to please fair-goers of every age, Wayne County Fair harness racing this season will boast photo finish and the saliva test. Responsible for the two up-to-date innovations at county fairs, is the Keystone Colt Stake Assn.

Previously in use only at pari-mutuel race tracks, a portion of the tax money from these tracks has been put to use to improve fair racing with these added features.

Already, at Hughesville and Troy Fairs on the Keystone stake circuit the photo finish has proven helpful in determining winners of close heats.

Saliva samples

Saliva samples of winners of all races at fairs are sent to a state laboratory for testing, another assurance of the best in racing at fairs.

Racing begins at 2 p.m. each of the three days at Wayne County Fair. Admission to the grandstand is free for the afternoon racing program.

Young members of the family may share with their elders the beauty and excitement of competition between horses trained to obey the slightest command of the sulky driver at no cost.

Keystone Colt Stake Races Wednesday and Thursday feature two and three year old horses entered in a ten fair circuit in Pennsylvania.

The county fair circuit is invaluable as a proving ground for young horses bred to become great racers and competition is keen. This is the fourth year of operation of the Keystone Stakes Association, founded to improve the Standardbred horse and harness racing in the region.

Its success is largely attributed to secretary, E. Neal Mack of Troy, Al Perkins, Pleasant Mount who serves as race secretary for many of the fairs in the circuit and Dr. W. J. Perkins, president.

Official starter is Charles Price who specializes in County Fair race starting.

Our visitor had heard a great deal about Tim's skill on the range, and now he was anxious to verify young McCool's reputation, as well as to learn some hints for better shooting.

But shortly after sitting down, the novice was astonished at Tim's reply. "But I really don't remember how many medals I have won... both my brother Terry and I have won the Father and Son Championship several times; nine years ago I won the State Championship at 13, and the last time at Camp Perry I won some sort of medal for every match." One might imagine the reply to be boastful, but for the Poconos' top young marksman, it was completely unpretentious.

Not fictitious

The story is not fictitious and after further conversation our visitor could better understand why Tim McCool could not be more precise in enumerating his victories. Tim had been carefully tutored to the highest standards of gun handling, by his father, Thomas McCool. The son is understandably proud of his teacher.

"Dad was an Army Air Force gunnery instructor for four years during the War. He went to gunsmithing school for a short time after, but they couldn't teach him anything he didn't already know, so we moved here." And the fame of Tom McCool has brought some of the most valuable arms to the McCool shop.

Perhaps slight attention would make perfect the action of a 100-year-old Henry rifle or enable the cylinder of a Colt Patterson revolver to spin better. McCool has worked on several models of both of these rare treasures.

His clients trust of such arms, which are worth thousands of dollars, supports his son's earlier remark. Furthermore, the McCools are able to manufacture parts, perhaps for completing a flintlock rifle or pistol which had never known standardized parts, much less replacements.

While few are able to take full advantage of McCool gunsmithing, more could benefit from their less involved services of reloading ammunition or adjusting a telescopic sight. But everyone can enjoy the rifle range, and there the quality of gun workmanship is matched by a faultless safety record.

Facilities for firearms

Facilities for rifles, shotguns and handguns are divided into two parts, the regular range and a shooting gallery. All grades of marksmen can try their skill from distances of 25 to 200 yards.

Tim is most proud, however, that no accident has marred the range's history. "We have made a lot of enemies, but if anyone waves a barrel or commits any horseplay, he's asked to leave. We're always sending a few away." One may bring his own arms or rent from the McCools for a modest price.

The shooting gallery was opened in 1954 and started originally as the project of Mrs. McCool. But soon the volume of business made it impossible for her to continue management alone. Unlike its fairground counterparts, the McCool gallery is for larger caliber arms, as well as the ever popular .22.

Whatever one's preference in distance, caliber or target, he is certain to discover that the McCool reputation and popularity are supported by real experience, as our fore-mentioned visitor discovered.

'Little Foxes' to open Monday

MOUNTAINHOME — Lillian Hellman's much acclaimed play, "The Little Foxes" will be at the Pocono Playhouse for one week, starting Monday, through Saturday, August 17.

Based on the Lincoln Center production, as directed by Mike Nichols, this production is presented with a stellar cast headed by Geraldine Page. As the star of Tennessee Williams' "Sweet Bird of Youth", Miss Page came into national prominence.

She was starred in the Broadway production with Rip Torn and in the film version with Paul Newman. Since that time she has done eight major films. For three of them, Hollywood has nominated her for an Academy Award.

On Broadway she has given evocative performances in a wide variety of roles, starring in "Mid-Summer", "The Rainmaker" and "Separate Tables" among others. This past season she starred in "Black Comedy", with this assignment she again demonstrated her extraordinary dexterity in handling both serious and comic parts. It is this gift that has led many critics to consider Geraldine Page as America's foremost actress.

The cast of 10 eminent performers also includes Betty Field, who is known nationally not only as the star of many major films but as the glowing leading lady of such Broadway hits as, "Dream Girl", "Two on An Island" and "A Touch of the Poet". Other nationally known performers of the "Little Foxes" cast include, Jack Manning, Russell Gold, Helen Martin and Richard Dysart.

Well remembered

Dysart's skillful performance as the Common Man in the touring company "A Man for All Seasons" is well remembered by knowledgeable playgoers. John Beal also adds his talent to the crown of stars. Broadway remembers his performance in "Calculated Risk" while national audiences have applauded his portrayal of Sir Thomas Moore, in "A Man for All Seasons". Mr. Beal has made over fifty films.

Lillian Hellman's absorbing drama is set in a small southern town, the ruthless efforts of a leading family to establish a cotton mill is the catalyst which the playwright has used to fashion this breathless play of avarice and intrigue.

Three times, Miss Hellman has been awarded the New York Drama Critics citation. The first time for "Foxes", the second, for her "Watch On the Rhine", and more recently for "Toys In the Attic". The Lincoln Center production was the first revival of "The Little Foxes" since its premiere in 1939 with Tallulah Bankhead as the star. The current tour is under the sponsorship of Jean Dalrymple of the City Center of New York City.

View at Pocono Knob panorama of beauty

MOUNT POCONO — The Pocono Knob offers a panorama with a sweep that typifies the beauty of what makes the Poconos loved by her residents and visitors.

A short drive down Knob Road in Mount Pocono brings one to a cul-de-sac, and the sight over its right bank is at first obscured by trees. Only a brick painted with the words "one way" is any indication of what lies ahead.

But that sight is a perennial favorite. If one is driving it is best to park on the road's wide shoulder and walk around the rim.

At first Big Pocono is quickly identified by its angular shape and its ski trails of brown etched in the green.

Further to the left, and twice as distant, is the well known profile of Delaware Water Gap.

Mt. Airy Lodge, though 17 miles closer, appears as a small cluster of buildings. Still further to the left, tracks of the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad emerge from the forest, curve and disappear.

Though a complete tour of the Knob is no more than a three minute walk, all of the Pocono landmarks are there to be seen, and the 1,700 foot elevation may come as a surprise. One's eyes cannot fully gain the whole perspective of a broad horizon skirted by tiny clouds.

Lake Naomi founded from love of nature of an old German woman who lived on the north side of the lake to be flooded. She refused to leave her home although she had already sold it. She and her cow had to be taken out by boat to the other shore.

At this time an ice company was formed. A huge ice house was built where the Lake Naomi Sales office now stands.

The Wilkes-Barre-Eastern Railroad passed near the lake and box cars of ice were shipped to New York and other places. Years later the ice houses were struck by lightning and burned down. The old railroad was abandoned and the state used part of it for new Route 940.

The lake was named Naomi again because T.T. Miller loved so much the story of Ruth and Naomi.

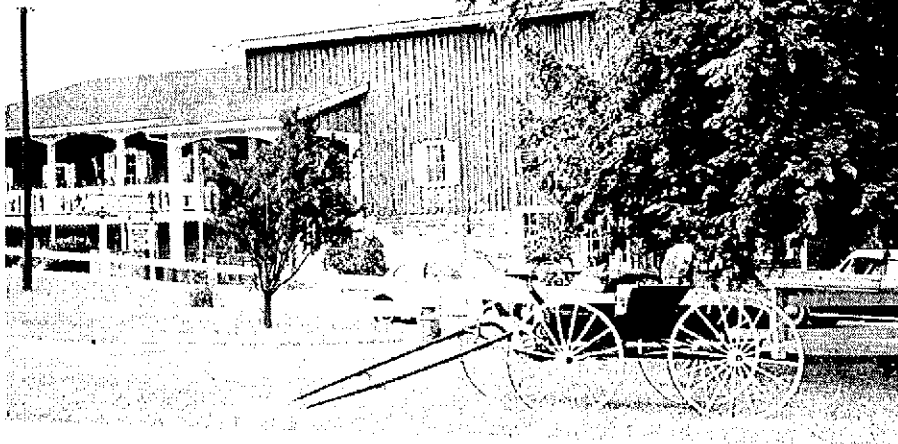

Frank Miller had a steam launch built which took passengers for rides on Lake Naomi. This created quite a sensation and the guests at the Naomi Pines House looked forward to boat rides on the wonderful Lake Naomi in the Poconos.

In 1902 Dr. Rufus W. Miller built the first cottage at Naomi Pines. Several others were built, one by the Mayor of Philadelphia, Rudolph Blankenburg. These were on the main road in Naomi Pines. It was about this time that the post office was changed from Naomi Pines to Pocono Pines so as to identify the place with the Pocono mountains.

Also in 1902 Dr. Rufus W. Miller and a group of interested men decided they would like to initiate a project patterned after the Chautauqua Institution at Chautauqua, N.Y.

Dr. Miller and his brother gave many acres to begin the school which was known as the Pocono Pines Assembly and Summer School. There were two hotels, a big auditorium in the woods, and many educational and interesting events, as well as classes in drama, art and music held throughout the summer months.

There was great hope for the Scene of stately farm

school and many well known educators taught there, but it failed although it appeared to be quite a flourishing project at the beginning, with so many eager men behind it.

The war now took over. In 1918 the United States government leased the land of the Pocono Pines Assembly and Summer School to rehabilitate World War One veterans. In 1921 a fire destroyed the inn and in 1925 the land was purchased by the Lutheran Conference Camp Assn. of the Missouri Synod. It became a summer resort with several camps.

A new lake was made by damming Beaver Creek which ran through the acreage. The place became known as Lutherland with a boys camp, a girls camp and the Beaverbrook Music Camp. Lutherland was well known because of many famous men who came there to preach. There were Sunday mornings when there were 2,000 people in the congregation. Today Lutherland has become Pocono Crest and is now owned by Valpairis University. Recently many new changes have been made.

There are several members of the Miller family still summering at Pocono Pines. Some are living in the original Miller homes. Mrs. John Porter Scott and Dr. Hugh Miller, children of Dr. Rufus W. Miller, are still at Pocono Pines. Also Mrs. William D. Gross daughter of Frank C. Miller as well as Mrs. Emma Miller Waygood, daughter of Dr. Rufus W. Miller, who has been instrumental in promoting art in this section. Mrs. Waygood is very well known for her own paintings many of which hang in Mountaintop Lodge which is run by her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Baxter. Mrs. Waygood along with Mrs. Gross, Mrs. Stevenson, Mrs. Person and Mrs. Simonetti, all Pocono Pines residents, have worked diligently to make the annual clothesline art exhibit at Pocono Pines a real success. This year it is scheduled for August 24 at Mountaintop Lodge.

E. Roger Miller, great grandson of T.T. Miller is well known in the printing business.

In 1963 Robert Steel and son Logan purchased over 2,600 acres from the Frank C. Miller heirs and the modern development of summer homes was begun.

Charles Saunders Peirce — philosophy pioneer

MILFORD — Lack of interest in her philosophers has been a continuing feature of American life. Whether by accident or by a preoccupation with the practical, speculative thought has won honor only in its utility.

William James' pragmatism, thus, only gained notoriety in its application to John Dewey's ideas about education. It might seem natural then that we should have completely ignored Charles Saunders Peirce, a major influence on James, and the man generally credited as the founder of pragmatism.

Peirce the philosopher and logician, was not unconcerned with the practical application of his thought, yet, as a Milford resident for 27 years, he showed little inclination to become involved with the mundane.

The unconcern was amply rewarded. Fifty four years after Peirce's death in 1914, his house, located several miles outside of Milford, on Route 209, remains a private residence. Only a small historical marker gives any indication that the large, odd-shaped building was once the home of one of America's few original philosophers.

It would be as foolish to try to romanticize Peirce's relation to Pike County as it would his own life. In the "American Pragmatists," Milton Konvitz and Gail Kennedy note an "inner instability and neurotic traits that prevented him from following an academic life."

Rather, for 30 years Peirce worked for the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, retiring in Milford in 1887. A key to what was certainly a frustrated life, lies in the philosopher's youth. Peirce's father, Benjamin, was a professor at Harvard, and the foremost mathematician of his day. The father rigorously drilled his son who was soon recognized as genius. The boy graduated from Harvard at 20.

Peirce considered the Milford area "the wildest country in the northern states," and "Philwood," his house, seems to have been with the intention of isolation. Miss Frances Hankins, lifetime Milford resident, remembers the stories of her father regarding Peirce and his French wife. She says, "he was hardly very sociable and probably misunderstood."

Pike County residents of Charles Saunders Peirce

He had a ladder going up to his attic study, and he just pulled up the ladder when he wanted to be alone." Peirce himself remarked, "only once in all my lifetime have I known pleasure of prose...that pleasure was beatific but it was meant as blame. It was a critic, who said I did not seem to be absolutely sure of my own conclusions." The remark gives a small hint of what Peirce most valued in his own thought, "the principles of pragmatism."

During the mid 19th-century, "German Idealism was the predominant school of philosophy, and it had been established some one hundred years earlier by Immanuel Kant. Very briefly, it held that qualities of perception and ethics were apriori, that is humanly intrinsic and that sense impressions were independent of knowledge. Knowledge could be derived from sensory experience, but itself resulted from the design of the mind.

Peirce believed that "one could drive a coach and four" through such an argument.

Though long formulated, Peirce's arguments were published in the January, 1878 edition of "Popular Science," the articles entitled "How To Make Our Ideas Clear." The "function of thinking is belief and the essence of belief is the establishment of a habit. Different beliefs are distinguished by the different modes of action to which they give rise."

These sentences give a whole new thrust to the conception of knowledge. No longer does the mind serve as a source of belief in itself: now the emphasis is on observable outward behavior. "Reality," from the same article, "consists in the peculiar, sensible effects which things partaking of it, produce."

Taken for granted

Today such an opinion is taken for granted, but in 1878 it was a philosophic bombshell. The very same, "How To Make Our Ideas Clear" stimulated William James to postulate a whole new definition of truth, the "pragmatic." Truth becomes a process, and "happens to an idea." The question is truth's consequences rather than its sources.

Peirce lived to see the acceptance of his philosophy, but he was denied a grant from the Carnegie Fund which would have enabled him to publish his writings. The Foundation did not consider a study of logic to meet its stipulation grants in "natural science." Of course, Peirce's work was far reaching. Geodesy, religion, chemistry, astronomy, history and Egyptology are some of the subjects included in manuscripts finally published in 1935 by Harvard University.

Cancer brought death at 75 for Peirce, and only recently had his work been fully studied.

Despite the philosopher's solitude and eccentricity, Pocono residents should feel very proud of one of their foremost citizens.

'Many come' more true today

FLAMINGO, Fla. (UPI) — The Seminole Indians who once roamed the Florida Everglades used the phrase "i-wox-chee," meaning "many come." Today they would be using that expression over and over.

According to the official tally of the National Park Service, attendance in Everglades National Park reached 1,098,284 during 1967 — the second successive year that the million mark was passed.

Boats can survive bad weather

HARRISBURG — A Fish-Commission review of boating accidents reveals that overloaded boats, 'leaky' boats, changing seats, sudden squalls and wrong methods of dealing with choppy water are common ways for getting into serious boating trouble.

Caught offshore by a squall, the inexperienced boater is exposed to the same peril that besets a person lost in the woods — panic. It should be remembered that the smallest open boat has great ability to survive in bad weather, if given a chance. Get as much weight as possible below the waterline, and work your way carefully to shore or head into the wind and hold your position if following seas threaten to wash into the boat.

But suppose the worst happens—the boat capsizes or swamps. Most boats will stay partially afloat. Normally metal or fiberglass boats have air-tight compartments or floatation material built into the hull. Wooden boats will usually stay afloat and help support the passengers—if they stay in the water alongside.

In any contingency there is one move that is totally taboo—leaving the boat to swim ashore. A high percentage of those who try it never get there. It is sound practice to make sure that everyone stays hitched together by one means or another at the boat.

While we can't overstate the need for safety afloat, many drownings occur from docks, beaches and bathing rafts. As for the pitiful fate of unwary waders, inept swimmers and small children who elude vigilance, there would seem to be no rules, except to be ever alert around or on the water.

Penn Hills Lodge international attraction

ANALOMINK — The Pocono Mountains' pre-eminent position as the nation's honeymoon resort area is common knowledge, but not so common is the fact of its international reputation.

A visit to Penn Hills Lodge and Cottages at Analomink is certain proof.

A typical August guest register lists an assemblage from Canada and Mexico, not to mention Mississippi, California and Massachusetts. The North American guest's presence is readily understandable, but a Mexican couple not only proves the Pocono fame but raises the query of why it should spread so far.

Pablo and Toby Smoledsky of Mexico City are quite anxious to explain, and anxious because Penn Hills and the Poconos have done much to make their honeymoon one to remember. They share the smiles of their fellow guests, but perhaps unlike others, the Smoledskys have traveled thousands of miles after their wedding.

Mrs. Smoledsky began, "I read the advertisement in Bride's Magazine, and sent away for some information. When it came, I was sold." Their fluency in English gives some hint of the Mexican's sophistication in travel, and both are past visitors to the United States.

Smoledsky continued, "Our only problem was that no one had ever heard of Analomink, not the American Embassy nor the travel agent; but we came anyway, first to San Francisco,

Mr. and Mrs. Pablo Smoledsky

Los Angeles, Niagara Falls and then here." Not every mile of the trip brought needed assistance. He continues — "many places, even in upper New York, didn't know how to travel, and didn't have a map; but we finally got a bus to Scranton, then it was easy."

Despite the trip, their reaction changes upon mentioning the Poconos. Both smiled warmly and the lovely young wife injected, "I like it."

Smoledsky explained, "It's so very different here from Mexico, and other parts of the United States. We haven't been outside of the resort much."

As for Penn Hills, the new family is in agreement. She said, "we like the games best. After Las Vegas, the games here are quite refreshing. There's more imagination." And her husband added, "we like the constant activity."

In September, Smoledsky will begin advanced study in Dentistry at the University of Boston. He said, "We intend to return here, and to tell our friends back home." The conversation concluded with a piece to Pocono resort managers. Added the husband, "Mexican people love to travel. I'm sure many would come if they knew what was here; I think you should advertise more."

Penn Hills' richly colored brochures give little evidence of its beginning in 1944 as a good but simple restaurant. Mrs. Frances Poalillo, as founder of the resort, confides her credo — "good food and a clean room." In addition to the Smoledskys the precept's application has brought guests from Iran, Germany, England, Italy and Bermuda.

Mrs. Poalillo's son Charles, is Penn Hills' manager and first vice president of the Pocono Mountain Vacation Bureau. He confides an incident with the Mexican couple:

"The first day Smoledsky came to me with a jar of chili sauce and asked that it be placed at his table." Still another anecdote involved a French Canadian couple who convinced another couple to request a color swatch of their room before coming, as this was an American custom.

Perhaps the time is not far off when the complete Pocono resort will offer a vending machine for currency exchange and a trilingual host.
